NEW SIGHTS

DAVIDSON STUDENTS RETURNED IN THE FALL TO FIND A NEW BRICK STRUCTURE WHERE LINGLE MANOR HAD ONCE STOOD. WEST DORM WAS COMPLETED JUST IN TIME FOR ITS UPPERCLASSMEN RESIDENTS TO MOVE IN A FEW DAYS BEFORE CLASSES BEGAN. ON THE OTHER SIDE OF CAMPUS, CONSTRUCTION WAS STILL UNDERWAY ON THE MULTI-MILLION RENOVATION OF JOHNSTON GYM INTO THE KNOBLOCH STUDENT CENTER. A DEDICATION CEREMONY WILL TAKE PLACE IN FALL 2001.

STUDENT LIFE

Tree climbing, frisbee golf, slip n slide, 4 square, red community bike riding across campus, quesadilla eating, Summit runs. Davidson students play as with as much gusto as they put into schoolwork and studying. From fall to spring, Lunar Luau to Spring Frolics and everything in between, fun can always be found somewhere on campus. We're creative, energetic and spunky and we are experts at dreaming up ways to relieve stress.

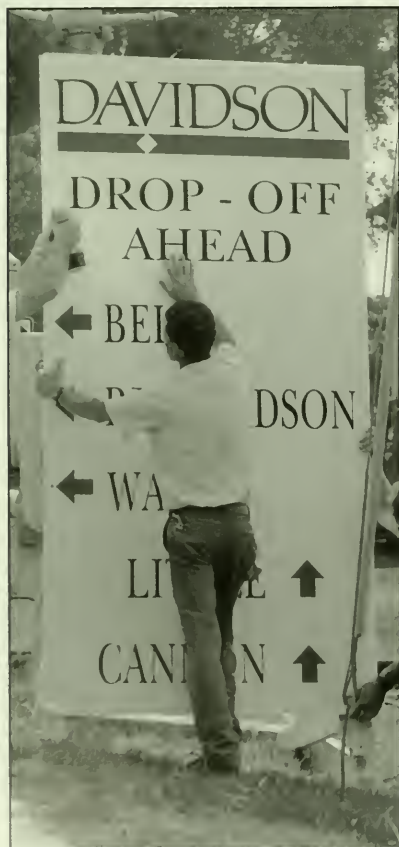

Freshman Orientation

LEFT: Signs are displayed throughout campus directing new freshmen and their parents as they first arrive on campus in August.

RIGHT: Basement bell girls cheer loudly as the enthusiastically participate in the annual Baker Olympics during Orientation.

Maggie McDougall, Kate Giguere and Laura Turpin join the rest of the freshman class in the Davidson annual race around Campus. Winners of the big cakes this year were Colby Broadwater and Colleen Faes.

The Freshman Class arrived August 15th and were immediately welcomed into the Davidson community as upper classmen were on hand to help unload cars and arrange dorm rooms. The next few days were spent being rushed through orientation programs of all sorts as the class of 2004 was introduced to the Davidson campus, attempted to meet one another and just to settle into their new homes.

As a freshman, it is often amusing to reminisce about the beginning of the year... Your first impressions of the people who are now your best friends, the overwhelming experience of your first party as a college student and trying to get ResNet to come set up your computer so you could feel in some way connected to the outside world.

Those first few days, no matter how packed and exhausting they were, reinforced what we had seen and heard as prospective students - Davidson is a welcoming campus filled with friendly people.

MEN WORKING

BELOW: The new Student center overlooks the track and football fields and this prime location promises to be the perfect escape for students throughout the years to come.

Knobloch Campus Center

All year students have been serenaded by the sounds of the construction of the new Knobloch Student Union. Knobloch will be Davidson's first intentional college union facility after the present union was developed by Shaw Smith. With excitement, Tom Shandley said that Knobloch will be a "common gathering spot where students, faculty, staff and alumni can come together."

William Brown explained about plans for the building, "The whole building is exciting; finally a post office, a first-rate food service, great public space, lots of windows- it will be the place to see and be seen, to find people. The openness of this new building will make it a feel-good place, where you are a part of a community."

Each floor of the new union will serve a very functional purpose in the lives of the students. The fourth floor will be home to the literary publications on campus as well as several other offices. On the third floor will be the cafe that promises to be a top notch meeting ground for students as well as other members of the community. The second floor will have the bookstore and post office. Brown feels that "people can find each other at the post office and will stick around to talk because they can also get a cup of coffee and sit down." The building will be rounded out by the Davidson Outdoors offices on the first floor and the Performance Hall attached to the Union. Students excitedly await the opening of this new building!

Homecoming 2000 fell on a beautiful September day and saw the coronation of King Chad Phillips and Queen Sarah Moore. The Homecoming Court was filled with seniors who represented students from all over campus. The men were looking dapper in Irish kilts and the ladies of the court were lovely as always.

The Davidson community gathered to cheer on the Wildcats as they triumphed over the Emory and Henry Wasps with a score of 17-14. Head coach Joe Susan led the Cats to victory, the third in their undefeated season.

The day was filled with celebration and festivities throughout the campus, eventually culminating Homecoming evening with a concert in Baker sports complex. Local band, and Davidson favorites, Cast Iron Filter, opened for nationally renowned band Train. Thus the day closed with many pleasant memories of the excitement the day held.

Right: Noel Zimmerman, Chaz Willimon, and Taylor Herbert of Looney Tunes provide wacky entertainment during Parents' Weekend.

For many Davidson students, Parents' Weekend is an opportunity to share their new experiences with loved ones from home. Hundreds of parents, many of whom had not seen their children since mid-August, flocked the campus, hoping to get a taste of Davidson life. And boy, did they get a mouthful, with planned, orientation style activities ranging from a meeting with our illustrious president, Bobby Vagt, to an international food festival to their first meal at Commons. They also had the opportunity to acquire bits of the "costly" knowledge, which most of them are paying for, by attending classes with their sons and daughters. Needing to de-stress after a long, mentally taxing day, many parents indulged themselves with the Davidson win over Randolph Macon.

Satisfied that their children were getting the education they came here for, the mass of parents finally thinned out by Sunday evening, leaving us to get back into the demanding routine of... partying! (Well, maybe with a lot of studying on the side.)

Davidson Outdoors has always provided Davidson students with unique and exciting opportunities to adventure into the wild. Some of the student-led trips this year have included canoeing in the Everglades, skiing in Snowshoe, West Virginia, caving expeditions at Tawney's and Pig's Hole, and numerous other biking, rafting and climbing trips.

For those students who love the outdoors but could never find the time to take a long trip, this year's "Into the Woods" week successfully brought the outdoors right to the Davidson campus with events including an on-campus cookout and campout, a night climb at the challenge course, frisbee golf, and much more.

Perhaps the most exciting Davidson Outdoors sponsored activity this year was the introduction of twenty new community bikes to the college campus. The bikes are available for anyone's use and they will be maintained by students at the Davidson Outdoors bike shop.

Lasting Connections

Through Community Service

Community service is a way for me to experience what is out there in the world. I want to be a part of the Davidson community, not just live in the "bubble" of the campus.

- Chandra Payne

One of Davidson's vital tenets is community and global service. We may not be leaders of the world yet, but we can and do make a difference whether it is here at home or abroad. This year alone, Davidson students have traveled from the reaches of Mecklenburg County, to New York City, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Florida, Nicaragua, Brazil, and Bolivia, to name a mere few. And while digging latrines and building walls involved a lot of hard work, participants always found time to relax, true to Davidson form.

Andy Lanoha, Chris Cho, Sarah Gniadek, and Bryan Garrett became companions for John and John at a homeless shelter in New York City over Spring Break. Checkers was the game of the night.

As always, the theater department impressed all with two major productions this year, Goodnight Desdemona, Good Morning Juliet and The Misanthrope. Tickets to these outstanding works sold quickly and the Black Box was sold out several nights for both productions. Cast and crew members put in hundreds of hours of work, and, consequently, enjoyed smooth shows with few kinks. Costumes were convincingly authentic and the backdrops and props could not have been better. Lines rolled effortlessly off the tongues of the actors and actresses. Thank you to everyone who was involved for your dedication and hard work. We look forward to next year's productions.

Ahhhhh.... after what for many students was hell week, what with midterms and papers, Spring Break (March 3-10) was a welcome relief from the daily grind of classes. The campus quickly morphed into a ghost town as we flocked to places such as Europe, Mexico, the Bahamas, HOME, or, where most of the student body seemed to congregate, Florida. Some people came back relaxed and ready to jump back into the routine, some came back needing a vacation from their vacation, and a few poor souls stayed here, playing that game we all know and love - catch-up.

Bottom, Left: Daniel Hanks puts another 3 points on the board for the Wildcats, helping to secure their win over the Hoyas.

What a way to end a perfect season! Not only did Davidson win, we did so with gusto, overcoming a first quarter deficit to come crashing back, 41-17. First-year Wildcat coach Joe Susan led the 2000 team to a 10-0 record, the first time any athletic team has gone undefeated in our school's 163 year history. In fact, Georgetown marked our 17th straight win, tying Robert Morris as the longest Division 1 winning streak in the nation!

The 'Cats' scoring frenzy started off with a 2nd quarter field goal by sophomore Daniel Hanks, whose 2 for the day brought his season total up to 11, a new Davidson record. Quarterback Paul Nichols clocked in with 4 touchdown passes, throwing a career-high 368 yards. Two of those bombs landed in the hands of senior Corey Crawford, the other two going to sophomore Mike Tarver and senior Brian Fish, who became the first player since 1982 to net us a 1000+ yard season. Senior Ryan Hutto added to the fun with a 36 yard punt return for a TD in the fourth quarter.

Before the clock hit 0:00, most fans crowded the sideline, making plans for which goalpost to rush. It didn't matter, however: they both succumbed to our rowdy jubilation, coming down with a bang. This was the first time the uprights have kissed our sacred turf... hopefully, it won't be the last.

In the midst of exam preparation and the actual grueling exam weeks, Davidson students found time to enjoy the festive season in early December. The beautiful AIDS luminaries were displayed around campus, bringing great beauty as well as a time of remembering those who are sick in the midst of this season of rejoicing.

The Generals, Delilahs and Androgyny performed one chilly evening and sold hot chocolate to benefit Project Smile. During the Vespers service, the chorus and orchestra performed and led the Davidson community in carols and Christmas hymns.

Later, the two great trees in front of Chambers were lit. Students gathered at this campus wide Christmas party to carol, enjoy hot chocolate and watch Santa reel down the front of Chambers. Even the town of Davidson invited the students to join them in celebrating this season by participating in "Christmas in Davidson."

From a Tibet slide show, to poetry reading, to renowned authors, to philosophical discussions, to debates, to Hitler in Vienna; things have been pretty exciting as far as speakers go this year. Turnout at most events has been phenomenal, frequently resulting in standing room only. The increasing popularity of the College has definitely impacted the quality of speakers and diversity of events attracted. Much to the delight of students, faculty, and staff, this trend is sure to continue in the future.

"Fall break was not a relaxing time for the Delilahs this year, but we're pretty proud of our finished product, our first CD entitled "Falling Into Place."

Even though we knew going into recording that this would be the most challenging feat the group had ever faced, there were many obstacles we could have never thought to anticipate. In order to keep down the cost of production and for sentimental reasons, we decided to record the CD in Lingle Chapel. Recording sixteen songs became extremely complicated because every quarter hour we were interrupted by the resounding melody of the bells of DCPC. We also had to work around the frequent outings of the Davidson Volunteer Fire Department, and the professional microphones still managed to pick up the hum of the trucks passing by on Main Street. The recording process was a producer's nightmare, but looking back on it, we treasure all the down time when we were able to catch up on everyone's love lives, run to Summit and play in the leaves!" - Ashlee White

ANDROGYNY

"Androgyny was started in the Spring of 1999 by Julie Hwang, Carrie Frazier and Yves Corbiere. Tired of the specified gender groups, the three desired to add a little flavor of their own to the Davidson a cappella scene. This year, Androgyny has continued to grow, adding multiple performances each semester with a growing repertoire of songs. Along with the traditional reading day concerts, the group has sung at multiple service opportunities as well as a Spring sing-off with the faculty barbershop quartet, the Four Coursemen. The group is looking forward to the upcoming semesters, which promise a lot of fun times and a few surprises." -Evan Andersen

GENERALS

"It was a quiet evening and my roommate and I were sitting in our room when she asked, "Who's singing?" I strained my ears for a moment, and then, I heard the melodious tones drifting through the open window. The music continued to near us as it suddenly entered our dorm, and then seemed to come closer and closer until, out of nowhere, eleven Generals filed into my room to serenade me. For a moment I thought I was dreaming - eleven of the coolest guys at Davidson, here, in my bedroom, singing to me - but then one of them spoke up. "We're here as a gift from your Connor big sis," said Dave Nutt, a senior and a favorite member of the General. They dimmed the lights and looked into my eyes and entertained me and the other girls on my hall with classic General hits like, "For the Longest Time," As much as I wanted to keep them in my room forever, I had to let the Generals go and make other people happy across campus. All I have to remind me of that wonderful night are the twelve rolls of film I took..." -

Maggie McDougall

This year has proved that Davidson students are as spirited as ever. Freshmen stormed the College in the Fall bringing with them unchecked enthusiasm and need for fun. One of these displays could be seen (and heard) every Thursday at midnight as the Basement Belk girls participated in their traditional run to DCPC, sporting their bras over their shirts. Upperclassmen, not to be outdone, led the charge towards the goalposts at the Davidson/Georgetown game. The stands emptied out onto the field as all celebrated the perfect season. Whatever the occasion, Davidson students never fail to exhibit the pride and confidence they have in their peers and school.

Below, left: The mock Presidential debate between the College Republicans and Young Democrats was a huge success. Those who did not know the issues beforehand certainly left with an earful from both sides.

Davidson students have had opportunities to travel to Charlotte and Winston Salem to see big shows throughout the year, but here on campus we have an even more unique opportunity to see our own students and alumni display their musical talents. Early in the year we were treated to a concert by present, recently graduated and long time alumni when Cast Iron Filter opened for the Blue Dogs and freshman Pryor Dawson joined the Blue Dogs in one of the final songs. Sophmores Dave Tolley and Mark DiCristina performed at the Project Life spaghetti supper before First Night Down. More recently CoHo had an open mic night where many young musicians awed those in attendance.

The musical talent in Davidson's student body is an amazing glimpse of the talent that abounds throughout this campus. What a special place where every Wednesday afternoon you hear sounds of drums and bongos echo throughout campus and later hang out with your friends as they serenade you on the guitar.

RIGHT: The drumming class on campus treats the entire student to a samplee of what they have learned. Students gather often to appreciate the sounds of these bongo players.

The Davidson College Symphony and Davidson Dance Ensemble have always been excellent outlets for talented students wanting to pursue the arts in a more relaxed, fun, and rewarding atmosphere. Luckily for the Davidson community, the hard work these students put in translates into beautiful entertainment. Playing the works of Bach, Mozart, Haydn, Handel, and many others, the Davidson orchestra expressed their creative genius numerous times, including performances at the lake campus, Belmont Abbey, Davidson College Presbyterian Church, and the Davidson Town Green. The Davidson Dance Ensemble, more than thirty members strong, showed off their own skills at four separate performances. Each time they showcased the talents of more and more individuals, a true representation of how popular they have become.

Farewell, Sweet Outpost

Those 3 am nights are killer!: Junior Nate Rogers hard at work, satisfying everyone's quesadilla cravings.

It's not always the workload that's crazy... Andy Raynor and Sean Gantt representin'!

The mastermind behind the whole operation: Papa D chillin' in the back room.

Maybe the new thing'll work, and maybe pigs will fly, and maybe you'll forget how this place only worked to unify. Maybe you'll change the place, put in another faction. Maybe you'll put the kids on lockdown to boost alumni attraction. Sanctuary buried in another herding tactic. Odds are against the knob the way the facts stacked it. Dream all you want, the new plan lacks it. In my heart, the truth is you can't ever match it. ~Marty Benson

It may have been Cinco de Mayo, but there was no celebration at the outpost on its last night of operation. Doing only a fraction of its usual business, the Outpost cooked up our last quesadilla requests. The late-night court scene would never be the same. Farewell, Sweet Outpost, the one neutral place on the court where we can always count on seeing friendly, if not sober, faces. We'll miss your quirky painted walls, your lively student employees, your supremely satisfying salty food and supply of free water. The workers will miss more than the wages. We'll miss blaring punk, ska, country, and rap on the radio. We'll miss the fun of the mic, and most of all, we'll miss working for Papa D, who gave us so much freedom.

Though the building may be given away, the idea will never fade: THE OUTPOST WILL LIVE ON... ~Julz Perry

SENIORS

Goodbye Davidson! Our time here is finished, and it really flew by. Graduation has come and gone and now it is time to join the real world. Living on our own is much different than that year we spent together in the Senior apartments. Life after Davidson is different, but still full with new kinds of fun. There's graduate schools of all kinds, job searches and apartment hunting. Some of us are going to take a year or so to decide which path we're going to head down next. Wherever we go, we'll always be Wildcats at heart.

GRADUATION

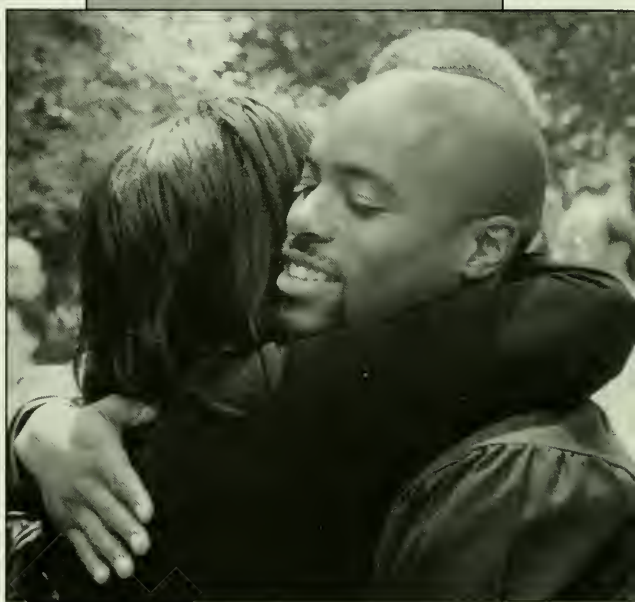

May 20, 2001 marked the graduation of a very special class. Not only was the class of 2001 the largest to graudate from Davidson, it was also the first to spend all four years with President Bobby Vagt, and included Vagt's youngest daughter among its members.

During his brief commencement remarks, President Vagt praised the 2001 graduates for their hard work and determination. He described them as "28-hour a day people ... with transmissions that have no neutral, but only three forward gears." While proud of their academic excellence and commitment to community service, Vagt encouraged the new graduates to take time for themselves and always think things through rather than get swept up in trends or crowds.

Davidson also presented the Hunter Hamilton Love of Teaching Awards to two chosen faculty members. The recipients receive a personal gift as well as a donation to present to a program or department on campus. Economics Professor Peter Hess and Mathematics Professor L.R. "Richie" King were the 2001 award winners.

JUNIORS

Scattered; that's the best word to describe the junior class. We're literally all over the world, and we're loving every minute of it! Even those of us that spent the whole year on campus had wild experiences. Junior year is the year to be hall counselors, to go abroad, to turn 21 and to begin thinking about life after Davidson. We're not ready to leave yet, but we're looking forward to the return of the world travellers so we can begin our last year together. We're going to make it great!

Leadership

It is a fact--members of the class of 2002 run this school! Everywhere you look, juniors are in positions of leadership. Whether it's serving as the president of an eating house or fraternity, the Patterson Court Council, Union Board or SGA, being the editor of a school publication such as the Davidsonian, or starting a brand new organization, our classmates have proven that they are willing to and capable of taking on the challenges and responsibilities of holding an important position while managing the rigors that come with being a Davidson student. We have proven we are one of the best classes to ever pass through this school. If this is any indication of what will happen after we leave here, the future is looking pretty bright indeed.

Turning 21!!!!!!

At the stroke of midnight, the celebration begins. Friends, having planned for weeks, present the newly legal 21 year-old with as many beverages and congratulations as he or she can take. The 21st birthday is the last birthday of momentous proportions for most of us. It marks the elimination of the last barrier to adulthood. But the question remains: Is turning 21 as good as people make it out to be? In my opinion, yes.

On campus, the much cooler, less crowded, and quieter basements of Patterson Court houses become havens of upperclass relaxation. There is a special pride in wearing that paper wristband for the first time. Twenty-one year-old night in the 900 room becomes a great chance to see friends you rarely get to see all gathered in one place. In terms of convenience, a party could take a week for planning in the past. Now, an impromptu celebration only takes an ID and a trip to the Taj MaTeeter at any time of night or day. The oddest sensation of all, however, is when your mom sends you on errands with two lists: one for the grocery store and one for the liquor store. Turning 21 is one of the most liberating and fun experiences a person can have. I wouldn't go back for the world.

Riding motor scooters through the streets of Florence, walking along the beaches of Normandy, posing in front of the TajMahal, skiing in the Swiss Alps, or elephant watching on an African safari--these are only a few of the amazing opportunities Davidson College students have had while studying abroad.

Name a country in the world, and you'll most likely find that a Davidson student is there or has studied there at some point in time. Every year, more than half the junior class goes abroad for a portion of the year. Students span the globe from Argentina and Brazil, Namibia and Mongolia, Israel and China.

Studying abroad is the perfect opportunity for students to gain cultural and social exposure to an environment that differs from the United States. Regardless of the place, students tend to enjoy less rigorous academics that allow them freedom to enjoy a new way of life. Study abroad students quickly learn the value of an ATM card--their key to survival--and that a Coke can't always be put on their Cat card.

More importantly, studying abroad offers students the chance to see sights and have experiences that cannot be duplicated in a classroom. However, funds do run out and Davidson beckons, and return they do, wiser, more knowledgeable, with a new world perspective and memories they will have forever.

The excitement felt by hall counselors-to-be is probably only matched by the excitement of the incoming freshmen although it is a close contest. Let's just say Boo and I started planning our hall before our residents even knew they were accepted. The night before orientation we stayed up making decorations and speculating about the girls on our hall; little did we know that it would be the last quiet night that 2nd Little would see for a long, long while.

Certain moments of rare insanity happen on freshman halls--the results run the gamut from fun to pandemonium. By living with my hall I have been able to rediscover Davidson as a junior with a renewed freshman perspective. After a year as police deputy, answer woman, "Dear Abby," and, my favorite, friend, I find it hard to believe that this wonderful time is over. This year has brought sleepless nights and it has made me put off work but I have also had fabulous times with 20 wonderful roommates.

FRESHMEN

Freshman year is fun. Sure, there's the whole transition from high school to college thing to deal with, but after that it's a good time. Many students agree that freshman year is the most stress free. No other living experience can parallel the sense of community that happens on the freshman hall. So, long live flickerball, the Freshman Olympics, First Night Down, mullets, PE 101, star gazing, Self-Selection, hall counselors, the Basement Belk DCPC run and the cake race, as well as all those other activities associated with being a freshman!

ODYSSEY

Many freshmen at Davidson make their first college friends on the popular outdoor and service pre-orientation trips we all know as "Odyssey". These week-long summer trips give freshmen the opportunity to meet some future classmates, backpack the Appalachian Trail, canoe rapids, go without a shower for a week, and begin the fine Davidson tradition of dedication to service. The bonds formed on these excursions are lasting and unique; there's just nothing like seeing a friendly Odyssey face in a sea full of unknown freshman during Orientation! FACULTY

Close relationships with faculty is one of those well-publicized perks of attending a small, liberal arts college. However, they do indeed exist beyond the realm of the college information pamphlet. Outside the classroom, professors often invite students to their homes for dinner. While serving as academic advisors, they offer guidance in course selection as well as future career advice. Office doors are open for students wanting to ask a question about class or simply looking for a friendly conversation or discussion.

Humanities

Davidson's unique Humanities program covers a plethora of topics with the goal of inspiring appreciation of literary, religious, philosophical and artistic monuments in its students. The course spans two years and outlines the main currents in Western Tradition beginning with antiquity and the Ancient Near East to the present.

Each of the four semesters has a different focus including the Ancient World in the beginning semester, to the Roman Empire and Medieval World to the Renaissance and Eighteenth Century and culminating with a study of the Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries in the final semester. Only a small number of students in each new class is able to enroll in the program which fulfills Davidson's Literature, History, Religion, Philosophy and composition credits upon completion of the entire course.

Jennifer Greene & Erin Thompson

When you walked wide eyed out of the first class of the first semester of your freshman year, amazed by the sheer brilliance and confident poise of the prevailing professor, chances are you were not thinking 'Gee, I would really love to sit down and have coffee with this guy.' Heck no! If your first day of freshman year was anything like ours you walked outta there saying 'What the heck?! Are these people human?' The intellectual atmosphere that Davidson sometimes engenders can be slightly intimidating when one first arrives. With impeccable organization, unlimited resources, and a sharp eye for detail, a Davidson professor can come across as quite a daunting figure with which a student is expected to actually develop a relationship. As the classes commence and days roll by, however, it becomes quite clear that college is not merely an institution geared towards shaping our minds for the better, but also our souls. Through the interactions with such talented and caring individuals that compose the Davidson faculty, a student learns to appreciate the academic atmosphere in an entirely new context - not only are these professors human, they're quite remarkable in their humanity. Through quizzes and old photos on these next dozen pages we will explore the unknown facts which color the lives of the faculty here at Davidson, hoping to provide proof that each man and woman who stands at the front of the classroom each day brings with him and her a wealth of knowledge and experience. See how well you fare before you say 'farewell.'

Classics

While Dr. Peter Krentz spent his sabbatical as Elizabeth A. Whitehead Visiting Professor at the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, Greece, Dr. Michael Clark brought his knowledge of Athenian Historians and Ancient Greece to the Davidson campus. Dr. Dirk French taught Hittite, the language of the inhabitants of ancient Turkey, to seven brave students. Dr. Michael Toumazou, Dr. French, and other officers also inducted several new members into their Classics Fraternity, including a faculty member. After the induction ceremony, Dr. French demonstrated ancient fashion, both Greek and Roman, with live models. Dr. Toumazou also gave a lecture about the dig in Cyprus that he oversees each summer. Meanwhile, Dr. Krentz ran the 26-mile trek from Marathon to Athens, following the footsteps of Pheidippides after the Battle at Marathon in 490 BC. In the spring, Dr. Toumazou, a native Cypriote, gave a lecture about a number of glass slides he happened to find at a flea market. In these slides, one can catch a glimpse of everyday life on Cyprus in the earlier half of the twentieth century. Prints from a number of the slides were displayed in the Visual Arts Center. Noted speaker and archaeologist Dr. Joan Breton Connelly visited Davidson in February to lecture about her Parthenon Frieze theory. As well as her talk on this subject, she gave a small lecture about the role of priestesses in cult worship. ~Contributed by Rachel Wippold

Religion

A major in Religion offers intellectual stimulation and excitement. The practices, personages, events, artifacts, texts, convictions, traditions, and movements which constitute the object of the academic study of Religion are to be found in numerous aspects of culture.

Philosophy

Philosophy relies on reason alone, not the senses. It emphasizes clear thinking and rigorous argumentation. Philosophers have little tolerance for vague, deep-sounding language or facile solutions to important problems. Philosophical questions arise in every discipline and in every occupation. Philosophers are the people drawn to these questions who find them worth pursuing in their own right. Struggling with fundamental philosophical issues allows us to discover our limitations and acquire new perspectives, not only about ourselves, but also about our place in the world.

English

The English Department continues to provide one of Davidson's most popular majors. With 78 majors in the class of 2001, 88 in the class of 2002, and 45 in the class of 2003, Davidson's 15 English professors keep busy advising, teaching, and challenging a wide range of students who engage in a wide range of interests. According to the department, "The English major encourages intellectual independence by stressing creative, critical thinking combined with informed reading and interpretation made evident in clear speech and writing." The Department offered over 50 different courses this academic year in subjects as varied as Chaucer, Modern Drama, and Southern Literature.

As for the professors themselves, Dr. Tony Abbott will retire at the end of the 2000-2001 school year. Dr. Suzanne Churchill enjoyed a year on sabbatical, and Dr. Alan Michael Parker. No professors were up for tenure review this academic year. ~Contributed by Hilary Masell

6. For two years, with no regular electricity, I did class preparation mostly by kerosene lantern, bombarded by moths attracted to the light.

2. Former hobbies of mine include white-faced clowning and puppetry.

3. I sing in the barber shop quartet, "The Four Coursemen," as well as with the Oratorio Singers of Charlotte, which is the choral group of the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra.

4. Bill Clinton was the speaker at my high school graduation. Also of interest might be my fondness for the Anglo-Catholic Church ritual, including lots of incense.

5. I am British educated, a single father, and a lifetime rock and roll fan.

0. After hours I like to uncase a fiddle and play "The Road to Lissadunna" or "Captain O'Hare." A scrap of fiddle may live at my mind: "When I play on my fiddle in Dooney's Folk dance like a maver of the sea." A delightful company!

7. I can recite the names of all the US presidents in a minute or less (quicker if I don't have to give first names and middle names or initials).

8. I can walk through campus without being noticed by anyone. I also will never eat lobster before noon.

9. I always put my right leg in my pants before I put my left leg in. And when I get 'em both in, I love walking. Hiked ten miles into the Grand Canyon about four years ago, staying at Phantom Ranch that night and hiking back out the next morning. Was easy to tell the next day who had done it. We were all going down steps sideways.

10. I am still looking for a tape of The Grateful Dead concert on 7-25-74 (Chicago, International Amphitheater), which is the first rock concert that I ever attended.

Psychology

The diplomas for psychology majors will look a bit different this May. In 1999, the department adjusted major requirements to put a further emphasis on experimental research, requiring students to take three research classes and at least one class from the physiological, cognitive, developmental, and clinical/social/industrial-organizational fields. As a result, the 43 graduates this year will earn a Bachelor of Science instead of the traditional Bachelor of Arts.

Three new professors joined the department. Assistant Professor Rudy Jackson introduced African-American psychology to the curriculum. Visiting Professor Jeffrey Kellogg and Adjunct Professor Maurya Boyd filled in for professors on sabbatical. While on sabbatical, Associate Professor Margaret Munger received tenure.

The psychology department sponsored several speakers. Dr. Timothy Pons from Wake Forest spoke on "The Role of the Brain in Functional Recovery After Strokes, Head Injury, or Disease." Dr. Julie Earles (a 1990 graduate of Davidson) from Florida Atlantic University presented a talk entitled "Adult Age Differences in Memory for Performed Actions." Dr. Edward Hallowell from Harvard spoke on "The Human Experience of Attention Deficit Disorder." ~ Contributed by Kiernan McGorry

Sociology

In its most recent reincarnation the department of sociology appeared on Davidson campus in 1985 under the guidance of Dr. Janet Shannon. Before that from 1985 it was in the guise of a department Anthropology and Sociology which was directed by Dr. Grant Jones and Dr. Rosemary Levy Zurbrugg. Though these two recent changes might suggest a change in personnel, it was actually more an administrative change, since three persons who were teaching sociology have worked here for several years. In 1999 Dr. Gay Kaufman joined the department as an assistant professor. The other three professors in the department are Dr. Robert Ruth, Dr. Lakhi Sabaratnam, and Dr. Janet Shannon.

The interests of the department are relevant to the modern changes in the United States, changes which both teachers and students are subject. The criminologist, Dr. Ruth, has focused on Hate Crimes in the United States, and on Medical Sociology. He teaches several courses in the fields of Deviance and Criminal Justice. Dr. Shannon teaches Urban Sociology, Race and Ethnic Relations, and American Communities. Dr. Sabaratnam teaches courses on global ethnic conflicts, on comparative studies of family and gender. The most recent recruit in the department, Dr. Gayle Kaufman, teaches courses in Gender, Statistics, Research Methods, and Demography. These courses are taught at several levels ranging from freshman classes to seminars. Student majors go on to several different occupations, including different manifestations of medicine, business, law, teaching, computers, and so on. Some have been inspired enough to work on their own doctor degrees in sociology. ~ Contributed by Dr. Lakhi Sabaratnam

History

"How do you footnote a journal?" "How much time do we have left?" This is what I heard coming from the Senior history majors, hours before their 480 research papers were due. It was December 7, 2001, the anniversary of Pearl Harbor. It was "a day that will live in infamy," the day that we History 480 participants had to turn in our final drafts to our advisors. After months of brainstorming, research, writing, revising, rewriting, it had all come to an end. All we could do now was hope that our grader believed that our pride and joy (or nemesis) was the "scholarly piece of work" that it was supposed to be. In celebration, History 480 students met the team of professors who led us through 480 at the Davidson Depot.

The Kelley scholars were also toiling endlessly over introductions for their theses, which required the entire school year to complete. This small group of students worked hard against deadlines from September until the dwindling days of spring semester. Professors of history also received little rest. In August 2000, the History Department welcomed Dr. Daniel Aldridge to the team, bringing knowledge of African-American historical studies. Dr. Sally McMillan was awarded the Hunter Hamilton Award. Meanwhile, Dr. Earl Edmondson, chair of the department, spent Fall semester in Russia researching for a joint project with Ralph LeVering, that will result in a book. In Dr. Edmondson's absence, Dr. Robert Williams acted as temporary chair of the department. ~Contributed by Jennie Gold

1. Once upon a time, long ago, I was the sweetheart of the Beta Beta Phi fraternity at Davidson College.

2. As high-schoolers at a summer theatre program, Ann Margaret and I once presented a song-and-dance and piano program. I was arrested in Southern France in 1961 because I was mistaken for a notorious political radical; I was instantly liberated when the police heard my French. I was hit by automobiles three times as a child. My most terrifying moment was when I got off a train in Kiev to stretch my legs. I left my passport and everything else on the train. I was trapped by drunken, laughing Soviet soldiers who wouldn't let me back on the train. I was liberated by a 'Sputnik' guide who noticed what was going on just as the train started moving away.

3. My favorite musical group in high school was Depeche Mode.

4. I used to perform with the Cane Creek Cloggers of Chapel Hill, NC. I have read all four Harry Potter books. I hate lima beans.

5. I was a drummer in a Rock & Roll band for three years while I was in school. True.

6. I danced in a Denver Brown's half-time show when I was in graduate school. I also won First Prize ribbon and $9 in the South Carolina State fair in 1998 for a knitted men's pullover sweater.

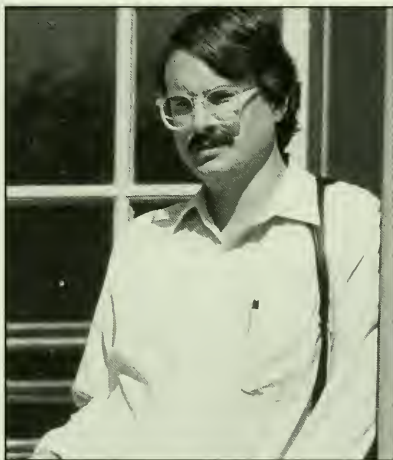

7. I was a cheerleader at Laguna Beach High School (the Artists). I also married the same man twice, with nine years between the first and second marriages.

8. I still like to watch cartoons, including Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck, The Road Runner, South Park, The Simpsons, and Beans and Butthead.

9. I made scratch biscuits for my family every Sunday morning. I once rafted from Paducah, KY, down the Mississippi to New Orleans. I once hopped a freight train in Charlotte, got busted in Greenville, SC, and sent home on a bus.

10. I am the daughter of a Naval officer. I moved so often up and down the East coast that by the time I had graduated high school, I had attended 14 schools.

Political Science

By now, it's fairly well scripted.

Prospective ask me, via email or in person, what my major is, and I respond, "Political Science." "So how's the department?"

they ask. My answer is usually along the lines of:

"Well, I haven't had all the professors, but definitely take Shaw for theory. He's my advisor, and he really brings those writings to life.

McKhaas... tough, but well worth it. He has a ton of first-hand experience, and the stories he tells about Somalia will blow you away.

Rigger, same thing for east Asia. Great sense of humor, and she's always getting whisked away to brief the CIA on something or other.

And you can't graduate from Davidson without taking at least one course from Ortmyer. That goes for all majors. Actually, the whole Political Science department is just plain good."

It's the quintessential liberal arts department, tying philosophy, history, economics, English, languages, religion, and -dare I say it?-a little math from time to time, into a dialogue- "No, I'm not going to law school." ~ Contributed by Nate Lotze

Economics

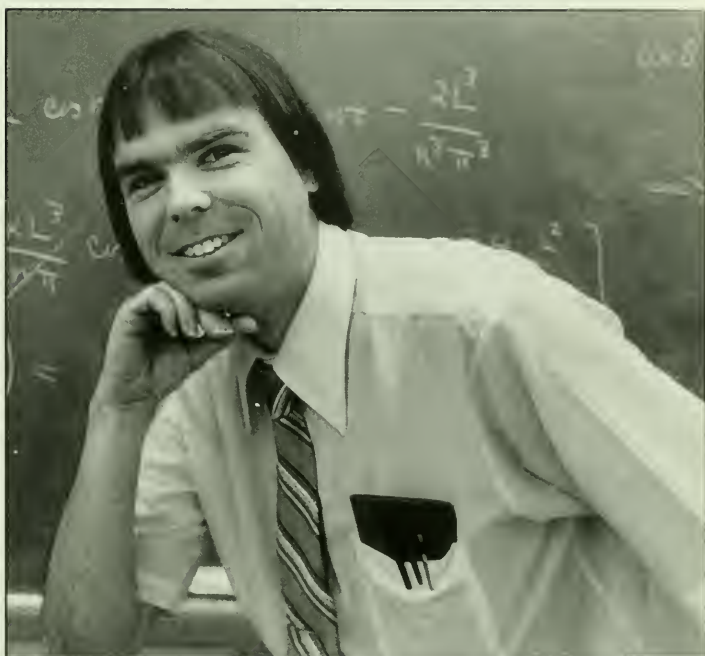

To assume that the Economics Department concerns itself only with graphs, gluts, and GDP would be asking too much of a rational actor. In 2000-2001, the Economics Department continued its pursuit of excellence in education while maintaining a tangible concern for world affairs. Dr. Appleyard led Davidson's Semester in program, teaching about inter-Cornelson Distinguished and discussed "Current Economic Policymakers."

*"Damn the torpedoes.
Full speed ahead."*

The department expanded by welcoming Professors Mark Foley and Fred Smith to Davidson. The students of economics at Davidson continued to shine as some of the thirty-five senior economics majors secured jobs at prestigious investment banks and consulting firms, while others made plans for graduate school. Omicron Delta Epsilon, the Economics Honor Society, welcomed new members, who enjoyed a lecture from Professor Emeritus Robert Avinger on the irrational behavior of markets. After such a busy year, one might suppose that the Economics Department can expect a downturn in the level of activity, but according to Professor Peter Hess, Department Chair, "Damn the torpedoes. Full speed ahead!"

Mathematics

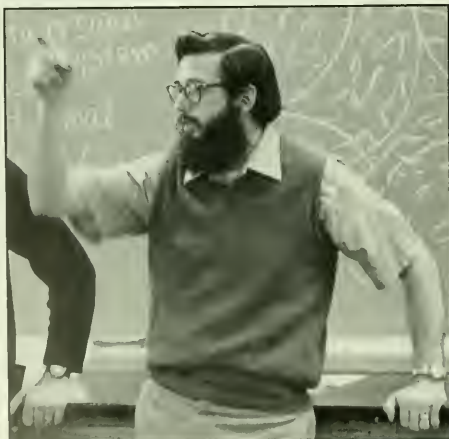

Davidson's Math Department was pleased to welcome a new addition to the faculty team this year. Assistant Professor Laurie Heyer's concentration will be primarily in mathematical modeling, probability theory and operations research. Lenore Blum was invited to campus as this year's Bernard Lecturer. It was also a revolutionary year with the creation of the Math major T-shirt. Under the leadership of Randy Skatnum, the math department designed its own shirt. Several copies were soon sported on campus.

Biology

One of the greatest things about Davidson is the opportunity to do undergraduate research. This past semester and summer, I did a biodiversity study in Huntersville in which I was responsible for finding amphibians and reptiles, bringing them into the lab, and taking measurements of them. Ross Cocklin and Wrenn Martin did a huge turtle population study. Shane Lindsey finished his turtle study, and was published in a major journal. J.D. Wilson did a study comparing salamanders in various streams and creeks in Mecklenburg County. Larn Haplin did a radio-tracking study of Eastern Box Turtles. Carrie Riley worked with golf courses to help determine their impact on bluebird habitats. Maury Gage did a study of various insects in the Davidson area. These are just a few examples from macro-biology, and there are many more from students of micro-biology. The biology professors at Davidson are unique because they encourage students to explore the possibilities around them. Many of the courses are very hands-on, and a large portion of the learning that takes place comes from field and lab work in and out of class. ~Contributed by Dave Stroupe

1. No student has ever seen my tattoo.

2. I think that the gummiest Jelly Belly jelly bean flavor is tangerine.

3. I used to race dirt bikes. I was sponsored by Honda of Raleigh, and won twenty-seven races in 1974.

4. Fifteen years ago I was living and working on a tropical island in Micronesia. I honeymooned in Kyoto and I can ride a unicycle.

5. I also ride a unicycle.

6. I used to play in a steel drum band.

7. I love to hike. It makes no difference whether it's a three-mile loop at Duke Power State Park on Lake Norman, or a twenty-two mile hike up Mt. Whitney in California. I've joined students in my classes on day hikes in the North Carolina mountains and would be glad to participate in trips or recommend favorite hikes to students.

8. I HOPE TO BE TEACHING CHEMISTRY AT DAVIDSON IN FIFTEEN YEARS.

9. I have been known to walk on hot coals.

10. I did Dutch folk dancing -- Klompen Dancing -- when I was young. We wore wooden shoes and traditional Dutch clothing. I can't remember any of it, so don't ask me to do it...

Physics

The Physics department welcomed visiting Assistant Professors Dr. Ken Krebs and Dr. Melissa Dancy to the faculty this year. A friendly new face appeared in the labs as well. Mr. Tom Lipinski is the department's new Lab Manager. The faculty enjoyed an accomplished year with several members earning recognition outside of Davidson. Subsequent to receiving funding from the Associated Colleges of the South, Professors Belloni and Christian will lead a summer 2001 workshop in Texas. They also won an ACS Technology Fellowship to develop innovative curricular material for the quantum mechanics course.

Chemistry

The past school year has been another exciting one for both Chemistry faculty and students. Graduate Mike Griffin ('00) published a research paper in an international coffee journal and also won a Watson Fellowship to spend a year traveling the world studying coffee production and consumption. In 2001, Davidson Chemistry seniors received places in some of the finest graduate and professional programs in the nation, including Michigan, Cornell, UC-Irvine, Penn State, and Berkeley. One senior even plans to take his knowledge to the United States Army.

There has been no rest for the faculty, either. New courses in Medicinal Chemistry and Biomedical Polymers were offered. Dr. Brown did research in green chemistry during the month of June 2000 at the Queen's University of Belfast, Northern Ireland, while Dr. Carroll watched his textbook on advanced organic chemistry enter its fifth printing. Drs. Blauch and Nutt are developing Java applets to teach the principles of chemistry in an interactive way with computers. Dr. Seub is the president of the North Carolina Institute of Chemists. Dr. Beeston is preparing for a second trip to Cyprus with Davidson's Atbienou Archaeological Project to gather soil and pottery samples for research in organic residue and phosphate analysis, as well as teach archaeological chemistry to high school students there. This school year was also special as Dr. Christian Grattan was a visiting inorganic and analytical chemist. ~Contributed by Mark Coa

Theatre and Speech

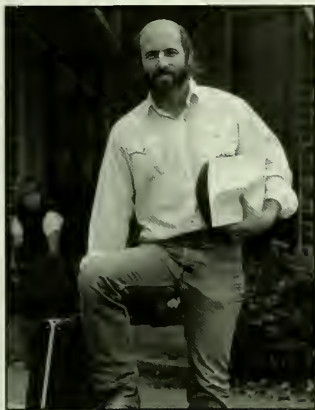

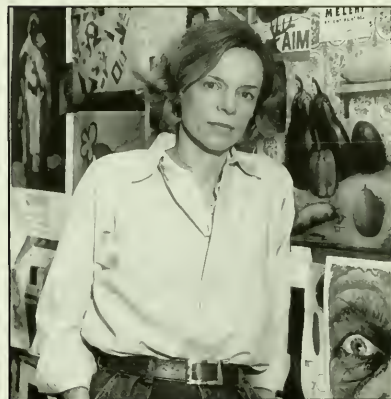

The theatre side of Cunningham Fine Arts Building has been one of the most active parts of campus this year. With everything from deconstructionist Shakespeare to classical Moliere, and shows directed by everyone from students to an off-Broadway playwright, theater at Davidson proved itself to be one of the most progressive and fastest-growing parts of campus.

Bill Neville began the year with a student proclamation of Jonathan Harvey's Beautiful Thing, forcing Davidson to continue examining issues of homosexuality on campus. Dr. Sharon Green directed Goodnight Desdemona (Good Night Juliet), a play that takes a comical look at Shakespeare's Othello and Romeo and Juliet. Finishing off the fall season, Oops... I Crapped My Pants, Davidson's only improvisational comedy group, challenged all that is holy in their show in the Black Box. Their sharp social comments, quick wit, crass humor, and use and abuse of the audience made for a wonderful show.

The spring featured a run of world-premiere plays, though it started out with a 335 year old Moliere play, The Misanthrope, directed by visiting professor Jack Beasley. Despite the verse and the rhymed couplets, the show was very well received. Multiple Obie award-winning playwright and director Marie Irene Fornes premiered her new work, 27 Rue de Flares in mid-March. Although it was unfinished at the time of production, we can be sure that eventually a fuller version will make its way to New York, and Davidson will have done it first. Finally, April ended with new shows written and directed by senior theater majors Matthew Hurt and Matthew Moretz, with a new show created by the Studio Theatre class, and with a night of one acts from the Directing II class, featuring yet another world premiere.

Davidson theatre continues to grow and try new things. This year has pushed the department to the limits of its space, and it looks forward to the day when it can utilize all of Cunningham as well as the Union's new theatre. ~ Contributed by Peter Lipsett

Art

Fall of 2000 brought a new two year visiting assistant professor in studio art, Kimberley Richards, to campus. Art Historians Larry Ligo and Nina Serebrennikov returned to campus after a semester with students in England, and a yearlong sabbatical spent partly at Princeton's School for Advanced Studies, respectively. This year's Guest Lecture Series in Art History featured Richard Shiff's presentation on Matisse; and Michael Leslie's discussion of English gardens and culture. During this fourth year of Shaw Smith's chairmanship through the efforts of Slide Curator Jeffrey Erickson and six student employees, art history course slides became increasingly available to students on the internet.

Music

The Music Department greeted the new school year by welcoming Dr. Milton Crofts as the new Conductor of the Davidson Symphony Orchestra. Under his able leadership, the orchestra expanded its performance venues and repertoire, starting its year with the Concert at the Lake, and finishing the year by participating in the Town Of Davidson's Concert on the Green series. In between these two concerts, they performed both on campus, in Statesville, and in Belmont Abbey to large and enthusiastic audiences. The Concert Choir joined with the orchestra in presenting two very successful performances of John Rutter's Requiem. In addition, the Concert Choir and Chamber Singers joined forces on a concert tour of Florida, Georgia, and South Carolina, as well as presenting the Annual Christmas Vespers service to a standing-room-only crowd in DCPC. Other on campus performances by the choirs, orchestra, jazz band, and wind ensemble rounded out the department's ensemble offerings. In addition to the ensembles, a full slate of student recitals and a performance by the Opera Theater Workshop of two one act American operas helped create a full year of music for the college.

The faculty of the music department remained active as well. Of particular note were Dr. Croft's presentation for the Conductors Guild National Conference in January, Dr. Neil Lerner's presentation of a paper to the Royal Music Association of England on the film music of John Williams as well as his election as President of the American Musicological Society Southeast Chapter, and Dr. Jennifer Stasack's ASCAP 2000 Standard Award as well as her involvement as an invited respondent at the International Symposium of Cultural Comparison in Korea.

The department continued its commitment to musical diversity on campus by sponsoring events as diverse as the residency of the African Drumming and Dance company Les Percussions de Guinée, the jazz pianist Harry Pickens, and an informal talk by the American Opera composer Carlisle Floyd. Plans were also generated this year for the projection of the Grey Building as a new home for the Department of Music, with a projection of occupancy by fall of 2002.

Spanish

Viva Espanol! 2001 proved a busy year for the ever-growing Spanish department. Visiting Professor Isaac Levy spent his year-long stint at Davidson teaching several major classes. Dr. Levy's main interest is writing books in Judaic Spanish. He taught Davidson Spanish students a few words of the language, which is still spoken today in a few regions of the world.

After a most successful tenure, Dr. Mary Vasquez handed over the Department Chair position to her successor, Dr. Albert Hernandez-Chioldes. Faculty and students alike eagerly await the arrival of a new professor in the fall who will be filling a vacant position. Next year promises to be just as exciting with many students planning to travel abroad to Spanish speaking countries.

French

Although a French major at Davidson College entails a bachelor of arts, it also includes life outside of the traditional classroom. Most French majors participate in study abroad programs—be it in Davidson's own program in Tours, France, or in Francophone Africa. This year's French majors (20 filles) and

These activities included a French department picnic at the Lake Campus, a crepes party to celebrate La Chandeleur, a weekly French table chez Voil with Anne-Laure (our resident French mentor/ex-change student), as well as Dr. Kruger's introduction to literature class's play, Rhinoceros.

Buckley, Dockery, Jacobus, Kruger, Singerman, Slawny-Sutton, and Yoder—who have devoted so much of their concern, expertise, and time to us over the past four years, MERCI BEAUCOUP! German Outstanding Student Stuff: Marcus McFadden and Geoff Evans both were awarded Fulbright Teaching Exchange Grants to Austria and Beth Dederick to Germany. Liz Neibeisel received a Watson Fellowship. Justice Kraus is going on full scholarship to Harvard's Department of Germanic Languages and Literatures for PhD work. Faculty Stuff: Maggie McCarthy was granted tenure and promoted to Associate Professor of German.

Russian

Most Davidson students studying Russian are just beginning to learn the language. The Russian department hopes to widen the intellectual horizons and cultural versatility of students as well as prepare them for additional academic pursuits and extraordinary career opportunities.

Internationally acclaimed Russian poet, Yevgeny Yevtushenko, spent several full days on campus in early September. Yevtushenko visited classes, hosted a showing of his own film and performed several poetry readings, both in Russian and English.

Russian professor, Dr. Troy Williams, earned his PhD this year. The department and college will miss him as he leaves Davidson to pursue other interests next fall.

"Why did I sign up to take Russian? Because I am a masochist." -Elizabeth Barnes

PATTERSON COURT

Patterson Court is changing. 2000-2001 saw the renewal of co-ed eating houses on the Court with the start of CoHo. SAE returned to campus after a year-long leave of absence, and the BSC is no longer an official member of the Patterson Court Council. The biggest change for Patterson Court by far came with the closure and move of the Outpost from the Court to the Union. Once again, eating will never be the same.

Pi Kappa Alpha

When looking for a good time, one must look no further than Patterson Court Building 01. For 131 years, Pi Kappa Alpha has been a pillar of excellence for Greek life at Davidson. Our boyish good looks, above average scholastic aptitude, and captivating charm endear us to both the student body and administration. For the 19th consecutive semester, our house GPA has improved reaching a dizzying 3.94. With these high standards, one would think we have no time for service or fun--it's quite the contrary.

The brothers rang in the Millennium with a case of the critically acclaimed Thunderbird 1999 vintage. After a boisterous round of "Old Lang Syne," we poured out a libation for some casualties of recent years-- Anything for Money (goodbye, Old Friend), F105, Ichabod, Cisco, and the rooftop welcome of the sun to Spring Frolics. Our Dionysiac hedonism makes PiKA a mecca for all who join us in our unending quest for good times.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

The past year has been kind to Sigma Phi Epsilon. After overcoming several tragedies and crises, we have demonstrated our resilience as a brotherhood. We have worked diligently to develop a bond of community that strengthens us and makes our days at Davidson meaningful. From addressing our responsibility to the greater community through sundry service projects to leading the school in a variety of areas, our brotherhood has sought to positively affect the lives of individuals both inside and outside the college's boundaries.. We look forward to the blessings that the ensuing years will afford us as we continue to aspire to our fraternity's noble principles of virtue, diligence, and brotherly love.

Connor House

CONNOR LIVES became our slotgan for '00-'01. We kicked off the fall with a Beirut tournament and learned the hard way never to hang up posters. Despite being Jesters in Jail, Connor girls made the best of our probation volunteering at Huntersville Elementary and Joshua's Farm, inviting all the fraternities for a cookout, and hosting freshmen functions. We dedicated the semester to house improvements and rapidly became expert bench and table builders following Mr. Graves' lead. We finally solved our speaker problems and bought a whole new stereo with help from Mr. Bugg and PJ. Mid-semester, the whole house came out for two successful painting weekends--come check out the freshly painted walls and Alison's zebra-striped bathroom! Proud of our hard work, we hired a policeman to patrol our break-in-the-basement sisterhood. The "Night in Soho" semiformal proved successful thanks to the Irwin girls and the time spent decorating. Bon Jovi's "Livin' On A Prayer" played no less than ten times...

I don't know who had more fun on Self-Selection morning--the upperclassmen who stayed up all night getting pumped to hang pots and pans or the 44 new freshmen we woke up. Connor women gave freshies an equally warm welcome Friday night, bombarding them with anything that would make a mess. Clad in camo, Connor girls were not so easy to spot. After clean-up, we made the new girls feel like part of the house with a "snappy casual" sisterhood Saturday night and a Big Sis/Little Sis party later in the semester. Other spring highlights included a first annual breast cancer awareness weekend, a freshmen scavenger hunt for signatures, and the wild Sticky Finger's party. We also worked with Papa D to step up our menu. Overcoming spelling mistakes (Conner), Standards, and J-Board trials, Connor girls knew how to "hold on to what we've got!"

Phi Delta Theta

It was, once again, a year of bebauchery and nonsense for the brothers of Phi Delta Theta. Dry2K didn't stop the tradition of silliness that occurs in our house year after year. Unlike many of the other Greek fraternal organizations on campus, Phidelt once again fought off the urge to fake southern-ness, talk about how much boozin' we do, act like we wanted to fight when we really didn't, give out an in-ordinate amount of bids, or lose to Warner Hall in a drink-off. We didn't do any of these things. Instead, we stood above the fratty fray and remained the only house with inclusive parties that are packed tighter than Ramirez's car while costing about as much money as an empty bottle of Davis's hair highlighter. The persistent ultraviolet glow of the blacklights continued to define the Phidelt experience. Some were offended regularly. Others felt very awkward, yet most seemed to enjoy the dance hall atmosphere and pumping tunes that flowed from the mp3 files of Daniel "DJ Shanks" Hanks.

Brothers excelled in the classroom as well as on the athletic fields this year. We remained a dominating force on the GPA scale for Patterson Court. the football team, composed of many brothers, went undefeated for the first time in school history. the same night as the last football game of the season was the annual AirBand. Hosted by Jon DeBord, Mike Pietrowski, and Ryan Hutto, this monster event awed a packed house of excited students. The winners, for the second year in a row, were Torrey Bartlett, "Sweet" Adam Stockstill, and Mark "Billy Ryan" Wahlberg. Christmas Cocktails was, once again, very well done, as brothers wore the obligatory turtleneck and blazer that is synonymous with such soirees. The dates seemed to approve.

In the spring, Evan Shay took the reigns as president of the fraternity--running his campaign as the nominee from the "Fat" party. Blacklight Beach Party turned a cold, January night into an evening of dancing in a pseudo-tropical climate that was sweatier than Will McMurray drinking tabasco sauce in a big woolen sock. Mid-Winters was a success largely due to the karaoke machine imported for the occasion. For curious frat guys, we will let you in on this little secret: karaoke machines=class. Many brothers played baseball for the 'Cats and did it well. The heckling was uite a success. Ladies' Night wowed a standing room only crowd of excited omen with its raw eroticism and the seductive dancing of Strokin' Ryan Stroker.

The exciting senior class, possibly the best ever, will certainly be missed. Bone will be Saucy John Lewis, Sketchy Uelsman, Coops, White Rocket Shirley, Dylan, Fruity Boks, Fruity Stocks, GOP Hodge, Big Cass, Rosey, Debo, Hutto, Stroke, French, Rowski, the Mad Booter, Fork, McGints, and Scary Assanova Parvin. Do not fret, however, because a new crop of fratty pledges and underclassmen have been groomed to fill in their shoes. With characters like McNasty, Bama Davis, Fat Boyle, Steve-O, D-F'n Rick, Country, Sketchy Jack, Old Man Fruity Todd Hassan, and the rest of the underclass frat all-stars, these shoes will surely be filled.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

After hard times its great to be back! The brothers of Sigma Alpha Epsilon have had a lot of time to consider things, and we've come back totally re-dedicated to our house, school and community. Every brother went to the Oxfam dinner during hunger awareness week, and we were happy to entertain the kids of Davidson at the YMCA Halloween carnival. We are planning more community service for this spring, yes girls, including our Hoddy Body fundraiser and Bikeathon. Our house now looks brand new thanks to the work we have put in, and Matt Arbuckle is the new president of PCC. Our new president Schuyler even has some plans, but you guys know that we're not all business. Besides having all of the freaks out at our Halloween party and at the eternal Tacky, Led Zepellin came to town (Zoso?) for a standing-room only show. We will sure miss our great senior class, some of whom helped the football team to domination and got the rugby team kicking it, but our pledge class is up to the challenge. We're all looking forward to the spring party line up and a great time next year---We would all like to welcome back our favorite lady, Mrs. Virginia Stinson---the best cook on campus Here to stay.

Warner Hall

The wild women of Warner Hall had yet another wonderful year. We started fall semester off with a Harley-Davidson Biker Ball that may just have to become a tradition. In November, with the help of Matt Hazlett, our WildThing, in his Tarzan outfit, and our elaborate decorations, Warner Hall was transformed into a bright rainforest for our annual semi-formal "Bungle in the Jungle." On self-selection we celebrated and welcomed forty-four new freshmen Wappa Happas. "Roses are red. Violets are blue. For crush party, Warner Hall was dry so we drank Mountain Dew." Madonnaromma made for some real March Madness but not as much as our Spring Formal!

The Wappa Happas did a lot more than just party though; during the fall semester alone we had a record of over 1,000 service hours! We helped out at Ada Jenkins, the Boys and Girls Club as well as at Joshua farm. In order to make some necessary house renovations, we sold candy canes during December and carnations during February. Also our scholarship chair challenged us with educational trivia questions every house meeting and also planned a delicious faculty dinner.

The graduating class of Warner Hall was a very wild (as we discovered at our senior roast party) and very special group of girls. We reluctantly say good-bye and wish them the best of luck!

Turner House

After two successful years of getting off the ground, TURNER house is here to stay! Kicking off the year with an open party to welcome everyone back, Turner rocked the Court. Our high spirits lasted into the wee hours of the morning during our "Crush Party" where each member secretly invited their favorite hotties.

Once again our girls came out to strut their stuff with James Bond flair at the 007 Party. Dressed to impress, Turner girls brought out the feathered boas and sunglasses to dance the night away. We kept up the costume theme with our Turner sponsored Halloween Carnival for the children in the town of Davidson. Between bowling for ghosts, costume contests, and pumpkin decorating, our girls really showed dedication to the same service that our namesake, Catherine Turner, believed was so important. Continuing our mission of service through Choice Tuesdays at the Ada Jenkins Center, our girls whipped up some edible goodies.

We celebrated the freshman with their own chance to shine at our Hollywood Nights Freshman Semi-Formal where the stars came out. After rolling out the red carpet for the froshies, we hung the mistletoe for our "Mistletoe Madness" party before Christmas break.

Over Self-Selection weekend, we welcomed our new freshmen by throwing the largest party on the Court. Everyone was talking about the line to get in that started at the bottom of the stairs! We vow to continue the efforts to make Turner a happening place to party with yummy food to keep our energy up!

Kappa Sigma

Over this past year the Delta Chapter of the Kappa Sigma fraternity organized and participated in many community service activities benefitting Habitat for Humanity, March of Dimes, Joshua's Farm, and the Ada Jenkins Center. The Delta Chapter raised thousands of dollars through fundraising events such as Bowling for Babies, Joshua's Farm volunteering day, and Weenies for Habitat. Every Saturday brothers have volunteered their time to the Davidson/Cornelius Habitat for Humanity furniture sales program. The house has also made efforts to reach out to the faculty by inviting members to dinner as well as holding question and answer sessions. Our new crop of fifteen freshmen will surely mean great contributions to the house and the community in the coming year.

CoHo

CoHo sprang into being in the spring of 2000 and by August was eating in the newly refurbished PAX house on Patterson Court. Molded in the tradition of the co-ed eating-houses of a bygone era but with new flair and enthusiasm, CoHo entered the Court and the college with a bang. Boom.

First night down was a stunning success. CoHo opened its doors to the world with its first party, "Jamiacan Me Crazy." Successive parties soon followed including a "Masquerade Ball" and a co-sponsored party with DIA. CoHo soon realized that its forte lay in a unique niche-open mic nights. "A Night of Poetry" headlined Professor Michael Allen Parker and premiered many up and coming young poets from Davidson. "Jam Session I" soon followed, delivering a much needed outlet for students' musical expression.

Throughout the fall and spring semesters, CoHo set about improving its house. Starting practically from scratch, four walls, a floor, and a ceiling, CoHo transformed the empty box into a home. A cozy study room replete with deco furniture and a state of the art stereo system enticed members to make the house a sanctuary to relax and a venue to party.

Spring of 2001 welcomed many new fish into CoHo's burgeoning stream. Self-Selection morning began at 4 am with house members gathering at CoHo and taking the freshman halls by storm, tiki torches and all. Following whipped cream twister and an open party, new members were ushered into the CoHo community. The months to follow would see sequels to "A Night of Poetry" with Dr. Abbot and "Jam Session II" as well as CoHo's first annual formal, "Under the Sea."

After a brilliant first year, CoHo eagerly looks ahead to the coming years to be filled with scintillating surprise and treasured memories. We know that "It will be good."

Black Student Coalition

The Black Student Coalition is a cultural organization open to the entire Davidson College community. The BSC plans and executes activities throughout the year that cultivate and promote the recognition of racial and cultural similarities and differences. These events help foster a more accepting and informed college community. From planning social activities, to inviting major speakers to campus, the BSC does it all and extends an invitation for all to join.

Rusk House

The rowdy women of Rusk were at it again this year! We started off the fall with our infamous first night back party that was a big success. We got to know the wonderful women of the freshman class while dining on the most delicious dishes our cook Laura had to offer. And who can forget our trip to Winston Salem for Destination Unknown? We chowed down at a Mexican restaurant in Mooresville before heading upstate for some bowling and laser tag. Some couples proved that even barricades couldn't keep them apart!

In true Ruskie style, we had our semiannual Cheeseburger in Paradise, where we had some special guests, Cora and Rona. Then we kicked it into high gear for Policeman's Brawl, where we cuffed our dates and brought them down to the house for a night of dancing with some very excited freshmen! In addition to these parties, our social chairs kept us busy with co-sponsored parties and round ups until the cows came home!

But Ruskies aren't only about partying and eating. We also made time for the 13th annual Homeruns for Habitat, which we co-sponsored with the fine men of Kappa Sigma. After twelve hours and 100 innings later we were quite tired and couldn't remember what exactly happened to the plastic deer leg bat. Individually, Ruskies played an important part in community service, from tutoring at Ada Jenkins and Davidson Elementary to wrapping Christmas presents for underprivileged kids.

We ended first semester with a bang, co-sponsoring Christmas Cocktails with Warner Hall. The effort was a huge success! After a month hiatus, we moved into second semester by waking up forty-four excited freshmen. Although we were all exhausted at six in the morning, we rallied very well for Self-Selection Night. The night turned into a very wet affair as our new members partied with our old pros.

Once we recuperated from Self-Selection night, we kicked it into high gear with Heaven and Hell. Our freshmen got to find out that a lot of Ruskies aren't so angelic as they seem! Big Sis/Lil Sis was a success as always as our families grew and upperclassmen paraded around in undergarments their little sisters had made. We got down and dirty for the co-sponsored Islander with Fiji! Formal turned out to be a big success, and fortunately, less Ruskies were kicked out of the hotel than last year.

We made some serious changes to the house with a big re-decorating party. We also managed to squeeze in a co-sponsored party with the Sig Eps for Spring Frolics. In honor of Rusk's twenty-fourth year of existence we had a birthday party! Longneck Redneck allowed us to enjoy the great spring weather while we presented our cowboy, Aaron Sundstrom, with the traditional belt buckle. Finally, we ended the year with senior roast, and said good-bye to some amazing Ruskies! HOT DAMN, BODY SLAM, WE LOVE RUSK!

Kappa Alpha Order

THE FRAT TRAIN JUST KEEPS ON ROLLIN. Over the past year, the brothers of the KAPPA ALPHA ORDER have continued their long tradition of excellence in the classroom, on the fields and around the Davidson community.

Needless to say, KA kept its position as the cornerstone of nightlife at Davidson. The power packed spring semester started with Midwinter's featuring the sounds of Coconut Groove. What ensued after was nothing short of a frat frenzy. From nightly wiffleball sessions to bashes such as Middle School Party, the Order seemed to be everywhere. Despite the weather, Spring Frolics rocked with live performances by the Po Boys, and our old favorite, Bluegrass Experience. For the sixty seventh consecutive year, Barn Dance delivered mo thunder than should be legal. Brothers and their dates got back to basics with line dancing and hay wrestling. As if things couldn't get anymore ridiculous, Old South iced the cake. The brothers took their show south, descending on Charleston for the annual formal. The night began with a fine dinner at Charleston Yacht Club and concluded with a moonlight cruise around the harbor and live music by Dean Dollar.

Karnival was the crowning achievement of the semester. Coupled with pledge/brother auction, the carnival donated over $10,000 to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Numerous brothers represented the Cats on the fields. The soccer and tennis teams were both dominated by brothers and both teams enjoyed tremendous success. In addition, brothers participated in track and field, football, wrestling, rugby, and golf. Also never to be underestimated is the presence of the entire house on the sidelines of the soccer field and heckling at basketball games and tennis matches.

The fall of 2000 saw KA pick up right where we left off. along with the weekly late night dance parties, the ORDER served up soem of your old favorites. packed houses greeted such maddness as Space Jam and Hurricane Hugo. DJ C-Murda and a crazy mix of lights, sounds and club gear turned KA into the tightest nightclub Davidson has ever seen at the always-popular Klub KA.

As the semester neared completion, the Order proved once again who was running things on the court. With the addition of 22 new members, there promises to be mo' butter leg to the bone jackin you up for years to come.

Phi Gamma Delta

The brothers of the Delta Kappa chapter of Phi Gamma Delta (Fiji) have enjoyed another great year at Davidson. We're still partying at our off-campus house located at 832 Beatty Street, and even though we were dry for the year because of our new national alcohol policy, we hope to get the exemption next semester that will reverse this status.

Service has been one of the strong points of the chapter's activities this year. Starting in September, we helped out at a fundraiser at Joshua farm, and we plan to participate in another later this semester. We have maintained our adopt-a-highway project on Griffith Street all year, and we're also planning to volunteer at the crisis assistance shelter in Charlotte.

Our solid pledge class this year will ensure strong leadership for Fiji in the years to come. We will miss our outgoing seniors, but we know that the men remaining will carry on Fiji's proud tradition.

SPORTS

2000-2001 boasts an undefeated football season for the Davidson Wildcats as well as the subsequent removal of both goalposts, which were torn down by fans in celebration. Our men's basketball team defeated the College of Charleston not just once, but twice. Before the start of the school year, the soccer team journeyed to Brazil to attend a training camp. But, regardless of the season or the sport, Davidson fans continued to cheer as loudly as ever for their classmates and friends.

He currently is tenth all-time at Davidson in receiving yardage, and ended the season in the top ten in total receptions.

The football goalposts came down for the first time at Davidson College Saturday afternoon. Following the Wildcats' convincing 41-17 win over Georgetown University (D.C.), what seemed like the entire student body (1600+) made quick work of the metal. There was reason to celebrate. Davidson came back from a first quarter deficit to win its 17th game in a row dating back to last season, and also tallied a perfect 10-0 season for 2000. It was the first time any Davidson athletic team went undefeated in the 163 year history of the school.

The Hoyas struck first, however, as running back Jamarr Staples carried the ball for a three yard touchdown. But the second quarter, and the rest of the game for that matter was all Davidson. The 'Cats got a 32 yard field goal from Sophomore Daniel Hanks, and two touchdowns.

Quarterback Paul Nichols, who passed for a career high 368 yards, found Corey Crawford and Bryan Fish for respective two and 47 yard scores in the second, which proved to be the winning points. Nichols (four touchdown passes on the day) finished the season with 2,244 yards. Fish finished the day with 103 yards on 34 carries, and topped 1,000 yards for the season.

Taking a 17-7 halftime lead, the 'Cats never looked back. In the third, Nichols found Mike Tarver on a 45 yard touchdown pass and hit Crawford again in the end zone in the fourth when senior Ryan Hutto, returned a low David Paulus punt 36 yards for a score.

Georgetown (5-6) got a third quarter, 33 yard field goal to close the gap 24-10. But Davidson's 17 unanswered points dejected the Hoyas long before the final gun. The Hoyas got a fourth quarter touchdown with 2:22 remaining. By that time, both teams had cleared their benches

*T*wo members of the Davidson Wildcat men's soccer team — Dave Buehler and Erik Ozimek — were named to the National Soccer Coaches Association of America (NSCAA) All South Region Team for the 2000 season.

Senior co-captain Dave Buehler (Columbia, Md.) was named to the second team for his efforts this season on the Wildcats defense. The Davidson defense finished ranked second in the SoCon, allowing just 1.25 goals per game. Earlier this year he became the first Wildcat to earn All-Southern Conference honors in all four years of their playing career. A feat that was not even accomplished by Rob Ukrop who is arguable the best player in Davidson history and ranks among the career leaders in the NCAA for both goals and points. Buehler was also named SoCon Freshman of the Year in 1997.

Junior midfielder Erik Ozimek (Columbia, S.C.) earned

third-team all-region honors. Ozimek, who joined the 'Cats this season after spending two seasons at the University of Maryland, is second on the team with five assists and third on the team in both goals and points with five and 15 respectively.

Over the course of the 2000 season, Davidson played contests against 22 of 31 other members of the NSCAA All-South Region teams including eight members of the first team.

The Wildcats finished the season with a record of 11-8-1 and advanced to the semifinals of the 2000 Southern Conference Men's Soccer Championships before falling to Appalachian State in overtime.

Ben Garrett as a midfielder added depth and experience to the Wildcats this season. In 1999, he saw action in seven games, he recorded one shot and did not record a point.

This year, Charlie Slagle entered an elite group of coaches in the world of men's collegiate soccer. Slagle, beginning his twentieth season at the helm of the Davidson program, is one of only a handful of men to reach the 20-year milestone at one institution.

One of Davidson's many offensive threats she spearheaded the attack this season. She is a very versatile player who can contribute anywhere.

Heather Maloney

In a rematch of last year's SoCon finals, the Davidson Wildcats fell to the Furman Paladins in the semis of the Southern Conference Tournament 2-1 in overtime. Davidson ends the season with a 14-8 overall record.

After a heated yet scoreless first period, the 'Cats jumped on top of Furman 1-0 at 59:49 on freshman Alia Antonucci-Alter's first goal of the year. Antonucci-Alter got behind the Furman defense on a through ball from sophomores Heather and Tara Maloney. She then slid the ball under the goalie to the far post for the goal.

Davidson continued to keep the heat on the Furman defense and even had a goal called back. With 16 minutes left, the 'Cats thought they had converted on a corner kick, but the official called a foul on Davidson negating the goal.

Furman managed to tie the game at 79:50 after a scramble in front of the net. From there, the contest went to overtime.

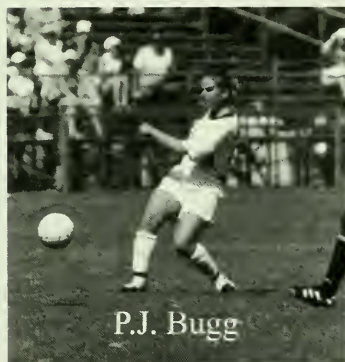

Six minutes into the first overtime session, Furman's Kaye Brownlee pushed the ball into the Davidson penalty box before rifling a shot to the far post that senior goalie Winnie Corrigan could not get to.

This was the second straight year that Furman knocked the 'Cats out of the SoCon tourney in overtime.

His teams won the first three Southern Conference Tournament championships and was literally inches away from adding a fourth title to his list last fall.

Amanda Mordavsky was the lone goalie on the 2000 squad. Regardless, her development into a great keeper made her an invaluable asset to the team. She has been consistently looked to for leadership on the defensive end of the field. In 1999 she saw action in three games and allowed only one goal in 80 minutes of action. She made five saves and had a 0.89 goals against average.

Allison Matlack
& Amanda Mordavsky

The Davidson Wildcats downed the Bears of Southwest Missouri State, 3-2, Saturday morning to take home third-place honors in its first season as a member of the NorPac Field Hockey Conference.

Senior Jennie Gold got the Wildcats in the scoring column first as she found the back of the goal cage with just under 20 minutes left in the first period of action. Shelby Faust of SW Missouri State tied the game just minutes later and the team went to intermission tied at one.

The Bears took their only lead of the game with 28:04 left in regulation, but the Wildcats equalized the score on a Jessica Barton goal less than a minute later.

As a freshman defensive back, she helped solidify the wildcat defense

Field Hockey

Barton then scored the game-winning goal with 4:25 left in the game to give the Wildcats their third place finish.

Junior goalie Amanda Mordavsky made six saves in the win. The Wildcats finish the season with an overall record of 9-13.

She was a strong player, both physically and fundamentally. She was a leader this season and took over anchoring the Wildcat defense. In 1999 She started 17 of 18 games for stingy Wildcat defense.

Wayne Bernard

Wayne Bernard will be one of the team's focal points on offense and defense. Having displayed a knack for knocking down clutch baskets in key situations, Bernard is a player that performs at his best in pressure situations. He has superb range as his jumper, and can also drive to the hoop with slashing moves. He is also a capable ball handler, affording McKillop the versatility to utilize him at the point.

Wayne Bernard

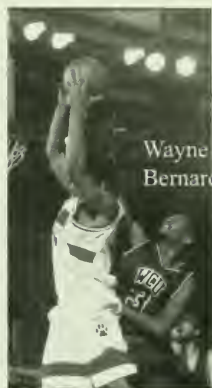

Davidson's attempt to take the crown by winning four games came to an end in the semifinals of the Southern Conference Tournament on Saturday evening as the UNC Greensboro Spartans (18-11) defeated the Wildcats (15-17), 73-68.

Junior Michael Bree drained a three-pointer with 16 minutes left to give Davidson its biggest lead of the game at 48-35. The 'Cats still led by nine four minutes later when sophomore Wayne Bernard canned a pair of free throws after UNCG Head Coach Fran McCaffery picked up a technical foul for throwing his suit jacket.

But the technical seemed to spark the Spartans, as they rattled off nine straight points. Freshman Jouni Eho made one of two foul shots before UNCG's Luke Boythe hit a layup to give Greensboro its first lead in over 20 minutes at 55-54.

Davidson didn't wilt, however, immediately retaking the lead on a jumper by junior Emeka Erege and two free throws by sophomore Chris Pearson.

A three-pointer by Courtney Eldridge put UNCG up for good with 5:48 to play, 62-60. With Ronnie Taylor and Eldridge converting all six of their free throws in the final 24 seconds, the Spartans wrapped up the game.

Wildcats

Avenge Nemesis

"We emptied are tank today," said Head Coach Bob McKillop afterwards. "You could see with eight to 10 minutes left, we just ran out of gas. Our energy level didn't come into play until UNCG started its run. Without momentum on our side, it was very difficult to maintain our energy."

The game was won at the foul line as the Spartans knocked down 21-of-23 free throws, and their last 11 in the final seven minutes. Davidson, meanwhile, shot near their season average at 65.5 percent (19-for-29).

The Wildcats took a 40-34 lead into the break, as they shot a splendid 56.5 percent (13-for-23) for the half. With UNCG putting so much effort into containing Bernard and junior center Martin Ides, Pearson was able to lead Davidson with 10 points at the half.

Pearson also led the Wildcats with 16 points and seven rebounds for the game. Both Eho and Erege added 10 points to the Davidson cause.

Pearson wasted no time in setting the school record for blocks in a season. Within the first four minutes, he swatted away three shots to reach 50, breaking the mark set by Jamie Hall in the 1978-79 season. Pearson finished the game with four rejections.

UNC Greensboro had four players finish in double figures, led by Eldridge with 18. David Schuck scored 17, Ronnie Taylor had 15 and SoCon Freshman of the Year Jay Joseph had 12, all on three-pointers.

The loss left Davidson with a losing record for the first time since the 1991-92 season when the Wildcats had a record of 11-17. The 32 games played this season set a new Davidson record, breaking the mark of 31 from the 1985-86 and 1988-89 seasons.

Nothing seemed to go the right way for the Davidson Monday night. The Wildcats were outscored and outrebounded as the Chattanooga Lady Mocs wound up victorious on their Senior Night with a 72-46 win at McKenzie Arena in Southern Conference women's basketball action before a crowd of Davidson (9-17, 4-13) was led by junior Kelly Copland (Alamo, Calif.) and her 13 points while junior guard Janna Magette (Hoover, Ala.) and freshman Meghan Bryant (Huntersville, N.C.) each added 10. Chattanooga (20-6, 14-3) received 15 points from Damita Bullock to lead four Lady Mocs in double figures.

The Wildcats fell behind 9-0 after a Nneka Irons three-point basket at the 17:50 mark. The basket forced a timeout by John Filar. Seven more UTC points and the Wildcats found themselves down 16-0 with just under 16 minutes to play. Copland got the Wildcats on the board with a jumper from the right corner. Bryant added another two on the next possession to cut the score to 18-4. The Lady Mocs then jumped out to a 27-5 lead.

Davidson reeled off a 10-0 run behind six points from Copland to put the I Cats within striking distance at 27-15. However, the Lady Mocs regrouped and ran off eight straight of their own to build the lead back to 20 points. Three free throws by Damita Bullock put the lead up to a first-half high of 23 points, 38-15. A late basket by Bryant made the halftime score 38-17 in favor of Chattanooga. Davidson could only manage to shoot 33.3% from the floor (7-21).

UTC came out and once again outscored the Wildcats early as they built a 28-point lead, 51-23 behind a 13-6 run. The Davidson offense continued to sputter early in the second period as it appeared a lid had been put on the Wildcat basket during the intermission. Chattanooga continued to keep the pressure going strong on both ends of the court as they pushed the lead above 30 points on several occasions.

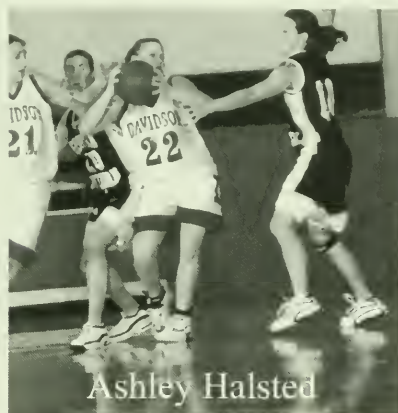

The Wildcats got the final six points from Bryant to help close the gap. The Wildcats were outshot 39.3% to 35.3% by the Lady Mocs and were outrebounded by five, 43-38.

Coming into her senior season, Taylor will be one of two veteran post players for the Wildcats. She will be looked to by both the coaching staff and younger players throughout the season to lead by example. Kim should provide Davidson with quality minutes in the paint after spending three seasons learning from the talented group of post players that came before her.

Early in the season, Katie Moreau got the opportunity to showcase her talents, and displayed excellent potential with three kills and three blocks against North Carolina A&T. She recorded her other kills of the season against Wofford and The Citadel. Moreau will challenge for playing time at middle blocker, and at the very least will provide solid depth for Coach Darwin and the Wildcats.

It's a Davidson vs. Goliath matchup

By Ann Miller
Advertiser Staff Writer

It has been 27 years since Davidson, a 1,600-student liberal arts college near Charlotte, N.C., allowed women to enroll. A year later in 1974 its women's athletics program was born. Last year, it had its first women's team in an NCAA Tournament.

That team is back, and plays here tonight against third-ranked University of Hawai'i in the first round of the Women's Volleyball Championship.

Has their been a bigger match in the history of Davidson women's sports?

"No," first-year coach Tami Darwin says without hesitation.

Does her team know that?

"I sure hope not," Darwin says with a grin.

In reality, her team's state of mind is not a concern. It doesn't take an SAT score of 1,300 — the average at Davidson — to realize the Wildcats have absolutely nothing to lose tonight. And Darwin has four seniors, including two-time Southern Conference Player of the Year Mara Mordini and Brooke Bentley, that she promises are "up for the challenge."

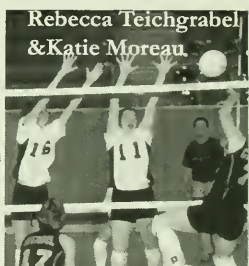

Coaches: Tami Darwin & Kelley McCaffrey

DAVIDSON vs Goliath"

It won't hurt that their first postseason taste — a year ago in Lincoln, Neb. — was terribly bitter. Davidson scored just 11 points against Nebraska, hitting negative numbers before a few thousand fans who thrived on their frustration.

~Honolulu Advertiser

Tonight, there will be a few more thousand, on an island curiously hooked on their sport. They were recognized the moment they stepped off the plane, and again while shopping.

Rebecca Teichgrabel & Katie Moreau

"We were just astounded at how well people knew the game," Barton said. "In Charlotte, it's more like, 'Oh yeah, volleyball ... do you serve or what?' It's incredible the status that volleyball has in Hawai'i. We feel very fortunate to be chosen to come here.

"As far as the crowd goes, our team really thrives on good defense and I think the crowd will help us to get excited and be motivated to dig those balls and feed into our offense."

Mordini, a 5-foot-9 hitter, is the focal point of that offense. She will break the school's single-season kill record the first time she tools a block tonight. She also anchors the country's third-ranked defense, sucking up more than five digs a game.

"A lot of them are a little taller than us," Mordini says of the Wahine. "We experienced that with Nebraska last year, too. We're just going to be using our agility and our defense ... hopefully bring our match that will win it."

Davidson's second season of Southern Conference success has given them a swagger. Combined with the Wahine's recently realized vulnerability — "We watched the Long Beach match," Darwin said, "I think every team that comes here will watch that" — it is easy to believe in miracles.

Even though the men's team amassed only one win and the women notched three this season, the year ended on a high note for many Davidson swimmers. With a total of 35 personal best times set at last weekend's season-ending Colonial Athletic Association's Swimming & Diving Championships, the 2000-01 season will be remembered as one of personal improvement for Wildcat swimming.

Senior Kurt Hirsekorn got the ball rolling on the first night of the CAA's when he shattered the school record in the 200 IM. Three other school records were broken by the men's team during the weekend. Hirsekorn also broke the old record in the 200 breast with a time of 2:03.48. In the 200 fly, freshman Charlie Hunter broke a four-year mark previously held by Scott Harper. Senior Matt West's first leg of the 400 free relay also shattered a Davidson record. West's :47.09 in his 100 yard leg was .15 seconds faster than the previous top Davidson time in the 100 free.

Two women swimmers broke school records in the CAA Championships as well. Freshman Sara Laws destroyed the previous 200 back mark by over two seconds, touching the wall in 2:02.36. Laws finished second in the event and also came within .63 seconds of qualifying for the NCAA "B" Championships. According to Head Coach Jim Conlon, that was the closest a Davidson woman has ever come to qualifying for the NCAA's. Fellow freshman Joanie Gidas swam the 200 breast in 2:25.00, breaking the previous school record by almost a 1.5 seconds.

For the entire season, both teams combined to notch 58 top-10 performances in Davidson history. Last season, even with more swimmers on both squads, Davidson could only muster 51 top-10 performances.

"This was a great year for personal improvement," noted Conlon. "Every guy on the team swam at least one personal best at CAA's. Even with a limited amount of women swimming at CAA's, I was impressed with the number of top-10 times we were able to record."

The waters may be calm now, but soon the Wildcats will be back shooting for even more records to shatter

Five Davidson wrestlers picked up victories and three of them placed in the 2001 Southern Conference Wrestling Tournament, helping the Wildcats to a sixth place showing at the season-ending tournament. Senior Anthony Albert, junior Jeff Libersat and freshman Shawn Reynolds finished in fourth place in their respective weight classes.

Albert (149 pounds) placed fourth in the SoCon tourney for the second time in his career at Davidson. He opened with an 8-6 decision over Gregg Fox from UNC Greensboro before falling to the eventual champion, Adam Britt of VMI, in the semis. In the wrestle-backs, Albert scored a 12-2 major decision over Cardin Smith of Chattanooga to earn a berth in the consolation finals. However, Justin Bellman of The Citadel defeated Albert 7-2 for third place.

At 184 pounds, Libersat triumphed over Luke Bialy of UNC Greensboro, 7-4, in the consolation semis, but fell to Jon Gross of The Citadel in the third-place contest. Libersat had defeated Gross earlier this season in dual meet action.

Finally, Reynolds (HWT) added two more pins to his team-leading total on his way to a fourth place showing. In the first round, Reynolds pinned Jordan Everett of The Citadel to reach the semis. Reynolds bounced back after a loss in the semis to pin Brian Toney of VMI to reach the consolation finals. A.J. Lyczkowski of Chattanooga defeated Reynolds for the second time this year in the third-place match.

Anthony Albert

Sophomore Grant Doornbos (141) and junior Jeff Bender (157) were the only other Wildcats to triumph in at least one match in the conference tournament.

For the fifth time overall and first time since 1997, Appalachian State finished first in the team standings. Five Mountaineer wrestlers won their brackets, while two from Chattanooga, and one each from VMI, UNC Greensboro and The Citadel placed first in a weight class.

The Davidson Wildcats stunned The Citadel on Sunday after noon by scoring nine runs in the eighth inning to win the series finale, 15-13. The two teams also completed a suspended game from yesterday, with the Wildcats (13-17, 7-11 Southern Conference) squeaking out a 4-3 victory to take the series two games to one.

The Citadel (22-9, 9-3), ranked 18th in the nation by Collegiate Baseball, took a 13-6 lead into the bottom of the eighth inning with its closer, Randy Corn, on the mound. But Corn didn't have his best stuff, yielding six hits and a walk, retiring just one batter he faced.

Stephen Aldrich opened the fatal inning with single up the middle. Jack Purcell followed with a drive to right-center that hit the top of the fence for a double. The first run of the inning came on an infield single by Ryan Stroker, but he was picked off by Corn for the first out. After a walk to Tim Frend, James Marino reached on an error to score Purcell.

Corn seemed to have the rally under control after getting the second out on strikes, but the rally continued when Cassidy Lundin reached on an infield hit. One run scored on a Dylan Deal single, as did another run when Billy Ryan contributed a pinch-single.

With the score 13-10 and the bases loaded, Bulldog coach Fred Jordan went to Paul Williams (0-2), who promptly walked pinch-hitter Mark Williams and Purcell, bringing home two more runs. After another pitching change, Stroker belted a 3-1 fastball over the center fielder's head for a three-run double to give the Wildcats the 15-13 lead.

Davidson's (22-9), who entered in relief in the eighth inning, allowed The Citadel to put the tying runs on second and third with two outs in the top of the ninth. But he retired the final batter on a foul pop down the right-field line that first baseman Deal caught over his shoulder on the run.

The Wildcats finished the game with 18 hits, and Stroker and Aldrich contributed four each. Stroker also drove in seven of Davidson's 15 runs, the most by a Wildcat this season. The 'Cats' lead-off hitter, Purcell, scored three times, and Marino blasted a solo homer in the fifth inning, his sixth of the season.

In the completion of yesterday's suspended game, the action picked up in the top of the fourth with Davidson clinging to a 1-0 lead. The Citadel scored an unearned run in the fifth to tie the game, but the 'Cats responded with three in the bottom half for a 4-1 lead.

Marino drove in the first run in the inning with his third single of the game, and Matt Berry followed with his own RBI single. Following a pitching change and a strikeout, Lundin poked another single through the infield for the final run of the frame.

Bulldog Dallas McPherson quickly got two of those runs back in the sixth with a two-run blast to right off the scoreboard. But The Citadel could manage just three base runners for the remainder of the game.

Junior Mark Wells (2-4) earned the win in relief of Derrik Wolpert, who pitched three shutout innings on Saturday to start the game. Wells allowed all three runs, two earned, on four hits in 4.1 innings without walking a batter and striking out three. Frend pitched a perfect 1.1 innings to end the game and earn his third save of the season.

Seniors Steph Hunter (Melvin Village, N.H.) and Lauren Kenchington (Annapolis, Md.) along with junior Sarah Otto (Greenwich, Conn.) each scored three goals to lead the Wildcat scoring attack.

The first half remained fairly close, as the Wildcats (4-8) jumped out to an early 1-0 lead with a shot by Otto reaching the back of the net just 13 seconds into the game. Good penetration by the Mount's Lara Steinbraker, however, quickly tied the game up at one two minutes later, as both teams traded goals three more times to keep the score even at four with little over 11 minutes left in the first, before the Wildcats took control of the final 10 minutes of the half and amassed a 7-4 halftime lead.

The second half started off extremely slowly for Mount St. Mary's, as Otto capped off another three-goal scoring spree by the Wildcats to help Davidson extend its lead to 10-4 with 23 minutes yet to play. Morley got her second goal of the day after receiving a breakaway pass from Kelly Moran, and taking advantage of a one-on-one situation with freshman goalie, Becca Nussbaum (E. Glastonbury, Conn.). Once again, though, the Wildcats put together another three-goal performance, capped by Otto, to take their largest lead in the game 13-5 at the 18 minute mark. The rest of the half belonged to the Mount as three different players, including Erin Garga, Harris and Moran scored in less than seven minutes, cutting the Wildcat lead to five. A third and final goal by Hunter stalled the Mount's momentum before Morley and Ashley Rusk scored two more for the Mount, cutting the Wildcat lead to four with just over four minutes left in the game. On the ensuing draw control, Davidson took possession for the rest of the time remaining and left the match on top with a 14-10 victory over the Mount.

Harris contributed with two goals in the game, and Steinbraker had a goal and two assists. The Wildcats were led by their overall point leaders, Sarah Otto with three goals, Lauren Kenchington with three goals and one assist, and Hunter with three goals and two assists.

The Davidson track teams had a successful weekend of competition at the Raleigh Relays. The Wildcats were competing in one of the largest track and field meets on the East coast with more than 2,000 athletes present from more than 100 teams. While there were no Wildcats who placed in the top 10 at the meet, there were several strong performances for the men and multiple record-setting performances for the women.

The women's 4x100 meter track team set a new school record with a time of :50.33, breaking the previous mark of :50.63 set in 1996. Later in the day, the women shaved just over three seconds off the school record in the 4x200 meter relay, as they finished the race in a time of 1:48.61. That time bettered the previous mark of 1:51.64 set in 1982. The team made it a perfect three for three with yet another school record. This time, the 4x800 record fell. The Davidson runners finished in a time of 9:36.60 which was just under four seconds better than the record which was set in 1999 (9:40.57).

In non-relay events, Freshman Laura Puckett (St. Paul, Minn.) finished 77th overall in the women's 1500 meters in a time of 4:59.99. Freshman Amanda Yeck (Swansboro, N.C.) leapt 9.96m and earned a 47th place in the triple jump. Junior Megan O'Neill (Charlotte, N.C.) finished 39th overall in the shot put with a throw of 10.47m.

Track &Field

For the men, there were two top 30 performances in the relays. The 4x100 meter relay team finished 27th in a time of :44.34 while the 4x800 relay was 25th. Their time of 8:03.42 was among the top 10 fastest in school history. Five individuals also competed at the meet. Jimmy Swansbrough finished 27th in the steeplechase with a 9:50.53 which puts him among the 10 fastest athletes to compete in that event at Davidson. Brad Becken and Chris Schmader both competed in the 10,000 meters finishing 51st and 58th respectively. The duo of Ben Gaspar and Dave Bunge ran the 5,000 meters and finished 114th and 120th.

The men and women will head their separate ways this weekend as the men head to Durham, N.C. for the Duke Invitational while the women head to the Georgia Tech Invitational in Atlanta, Ga.

Freshman Bryan Stonestreet's third-set tie-break victory clinched a 4-3 victory for Davidson over the College of Charleston in men's tennis. The Wildcats (5-6, 1-2 Southern Conference) picked up their first league victory of the season while the Cougars (11-5, 3-3) fall to .500 in conference action.

Davidson opened the match with strong play from all three doubles teams and won the top two matches for the doubles point. Freshman Rob Gould and junior Chad Winebarger improved to 8-2 for the year at number two doubles with an 8-6 triumph over Eyal Omid and Sandon Barth. Seniors Billy Boykin and Whit Hansen earned their first conference victory at number one doubles, as they downed Henrico du Plessis and Sagi Zakin, 8-4.

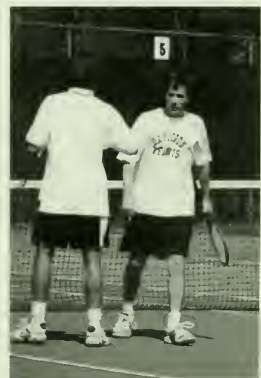

In singles, the 'Cats won three three-set contests to seal the upset. Hansen (#1) rallied from one set down to defeat du Plessis while junior David Webb (#5) pulled away from Bill Brehmer in the third, 6-1. However, the overall match came down to a third-set tie-breaker between Stonestreet and Milos Lazic at number six singles. Stonestreet won the tie-break 7-4 to give Davidson the 4-3 victory.

"This was a great match," said Davidson head coach Jeff Frank. "Quite frankly, I didn't expect us to win this, but it puts us in much better position in the conference."

The women's tennis team is approaching the 2001 season with confidence and optimism. To accomplish their goals, the team will be focusing on working hard, putting forth maximum effort and steadily improving throughout the course of the year. With four top players from last year's team returning, things are looking bright for the Wildcats.

Singles

A solid nucleus in the form of juniors Kelley Cantrell and Elizabeth Moreno, as well as sophomores Yasamina Hilu and Gayle Jones, look to lead the 'Cats into action this year. Cantrell, the team captain and bona-fide leader, brings a lot of experience to the table. With her big first serve and attacking ground strokes, Cantrell had a breakthrough year a season ago. "Kelley has gained a lot of confidence and belief in her game from her successful year at number four singles in 2000," commented Head Coach Caroline Price.

Moreno's quick hands make her a tremendous doubles competitor, but in singles she prefers to make her living along the baseline. The Spicewood, Texas, native is a frustrating opponent to play against because she finds a way to get to nearly every ball. This season, Moreno will be looking to draw upon her match experience and determination to cultivate a successful year.

"Pure enthusiasm," is the way Coach Price describes Hilu. She is one of the few tennis players who uses a two-handed backhand and forehand. Having two hands on the racquet at all times has helped her develop solid, powerful groundies from both sides. One part of her game Hilu is working on is her volleys. Becoming a stronger volleyer will make the two-time Virginia state champion much more dangerous and a better all-court player.

Jones knows exactly what hard work is all about. The second-year player wasn't in the starting lineup at the beginning of the 2000 campaign, but fought her way to the number six spot and four conference victories by the end of the year. Probably the strongest player physically on the squad, Coach Price expects to see more consistency out of Jones, especially in her ground strokes.

The two remaining spots in the lineup could possibly be filled by the freshmen duo of Lindsay Offutt and Katherine Hatch. Offutt has already made an impact for the 'Cats, winning the second flight of the Harvard

Women's Tennis

Invitational this past fall. In the finals, she disposed of her Harvard opponent while only dropping four games in two sets. An aggressive baseliner, Offutt's game is built around putting pressure on her opponents and moving in to put volleys away. "She [Offutt] can certainly hurt you with her weapons off of the ground," noted Coach Price.

Another one of the talented freshman to join the team, Hatch comes to Davidson all the way from Portland, Ore. "The more experience she gains, the better she will get," admitted Coach Price. A solid baseliner and quick learner, she already has had the chance to gain some collegiate experience by participating in the Harvard Invitational, Wolfpack Invitational and Southern Intercollegiate this past fall.

Junior Katie Brooks should be in the mix as well this season. Brooks played five matches at number five and six singles in 2000. Her experience will be a valuable asset for the young squad.

Doubles

With only one returning doubles tandem from a year ago, the Wildcats will be mixing things up in the first days of practice and early matches in the season. "To establish the right combinations, we'll have to pull from the talent of the freshmen and the experience of the returners to see what groups have the right chemistry," said Coach Price.

Cantrell and Jones teamed up to form the number three doubles duo last year. These two could be grouped together again, as they were .500 in conference play in 2000 and have learned each other's games from playing together.

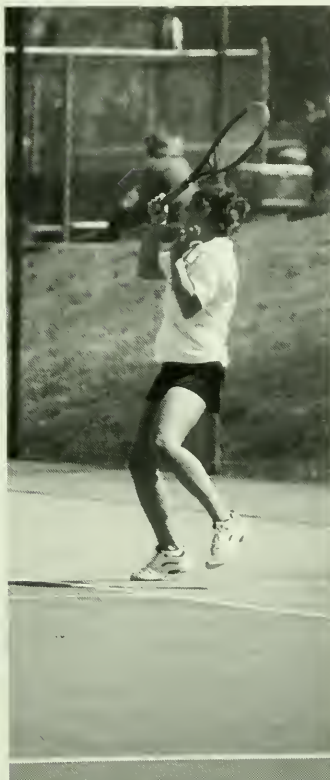

Moreno and Hilu also bring a year's worth of doubles experience to the table. Moreno's soft and quick hands make her a perfect player for doubles. Hilu's powerful ground strokes often put servers on the defensive when serving and volleying.

Brooks and sophomores Catherine Rainbow and Elizabeth Super have experience in doubles, too. These returners combined for seven matches played last year and could be in the mix for doubles this year.

The last five freshmen, Hatch, Offutt, Beth Corrigan, Alison Fitzgerald and Niki Leffingwell, will be shuffled into the doubles positions in hopes of finding one or two solid teams.

Senior Sean Davidson (Princeton Junction, N.J.) led the Davidson golf team to an 18th-place finish at the 54-hole Furman Intercollegiate this past weekend.

The invitational was held at Furman University Golf Course, a par-72, 6,800-yard course, in Greenville, S.C.

The 'Cats shot a 926 (+62) for the three-day event which put them 18th in the 21-team field. The Wildcats shot a 307 on the first day which was good for 19th and then dropped to 20th with a 315 on the second day. Davidson shot a 304 on the final day to move from 20th to 18th for its final standing.

Virginia Tech fired a tournament-low 283 and finished with an even par 864 to oust Furman from atop the leaderboard at the 32nd annual Furman Intercollegiate. The 12th-ranked Hokies erased Furman's hopes of winning its first Intercollegiate Title since 1986, with a scorching five-under in the final round.

Davidson led the Wildcats during the weekend as he finished the tournament in a five-way tie for 52nd with a score of 228 (+12). He opened the first two rounds with identical scores of 78 before firing a 72. The number 72 reappeared for the Wildcats as both sophomore Ben Friedell (Shaker Heights, Ohio) and senior Scott Shupe (Richmond, Va.) finished tied for 72nd with a score of 16-over par. Shupe shot 76-77-79 to reach his total of 232 while Friedell went 78-81-73. Junior Oliver Cross (Winston-Salem, N.C.) finished 79th (75-79-80=234) overall while junior Andy Allen (Augusta, Ga.) rounded out the Wildcat team with a finish of 104th (81-86-81=248).

Furman's Kirk Satterfield carded a 70 to finish eight under for the tournament, winning his first collegiate title with a three stroke cushion. Michael Sims of Rhode Island and Dylan Keylock of Francis Marion finished in a tie for second at five under

In the past, the Davidson crew has only gone to the Southern Intercollegiate Rowing Association Regatta (SIRA) as a learning experience and to see some of the best clubs in the nation compete. This year, Davidson surprised those incredibly powerful teams and showed them that it can no longer be taken lightly.

Although the varsity men's team captured medals at each of the spring regattas this year, hardly anyone thought they could achieve a top ranking amidst SIRA's stiff competition. Even when they made a strong showing in the earlier heats, placing second in the preliminaries and third in the semi-finals, it still seemed unlikely that a medal was in reach. In the finals, however, the varsity men stepped up their performance and fought hard against the University of Texas to tie for the bronze medal. As a matter of fact, the battle for third place was so close that the race officials could not decide which boat finished first even after watching the videotape. The judges finally compared race times and found that the two teams both completed the race in exactly 7:17.43 seconds and granted both teams the bronze.

The men's victory is even more impressive considering that crew at Davidson is a club sport and does not have a full-time coach unlike most of the other teams at SIRA. Now, the varsity men will advance to the Champion Collegiate Regatta which will be held in Gainesville, Georgia in mid-May. This will be the first time in the history of Davidson crew that a boat will attend a national regatta.

Power of a 4+

Despite their amazing finish at SIRA, the varsity men remain humble about their victory. While sophomore varsity rower, Charlie Babcock, acknowledges his boat's accomplishments because it "represents a phenomenal race" and "attests to the importance of determination in achieving one's goals," he quickly points out that the rest of the team also made an impressive showing.

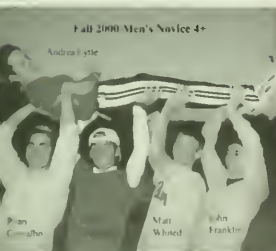

"The attention we have received," says Babcock, "neglects the novice men and varsity women who also had spectacular races."

In fact, most members of the novice men's and the varsity women's boats agree that SIRA reflects some of their strongest rowing this semester.

After easily coming in second in their preliminary heat, the men faced a tough semi-final and were not able to advance to the finals. Although frustrated with their finish, the novice men were extremely pleased with their race.

"We felt proud of our tremendous improvement since the season's beginning," said freshman rower Dan O'Neill. "It really counts for something having done so well against such big schools...even despite intense competition."

The varsity women also felt they rowed their best possible race. They faced fierce competition in the lightweight category and finished fourth in their final. As sophomore rower Monica Siegenthaler stated, "Although we did not necessarily do well as far as the placing, we felt that we had our best race of the season. We rowed well together and gave it all our strength. That's all we could ask for in a race."

COLLEGE

2001

All Champions share this one rule: to finish the task.

We are so proud of you accomplishment!

What a champion you are, Frank!

Love, Mom, Dad and Chris

Dear Micheal,
 You have made us very proud. As you leave college to pursue your dreams, may you continue to grow and savor life's opportunities. And don't forget to write home once in a while.

Congratulations to our Marie
 Elizabeth Sharp. We celebrate your graduation from Davidson. Your tenacity to survive these past four years, and your determination to have a successful life.

You keep exceeding everybody's wildest expectations. There seems to be no limit to what you can accomplish. We are very proud of you.

Congratulations... We are so very proud of you and your accomplishments. Because of your hard work, sacrifices and determination, you now have an opportunity to make a unique difference within the community. If you can love what you do, consider others with respect and with a kind heart, your life will be as enriched as those around you.

You go girl!

*Love,
Mom & Dad*

As you grew up you loved language, but we never envisioned the gifted writer and international traveler that you have become. You were a gift from God, a daughter we will always cherish. Go out and use your skills and talent telling your readers the stories on your heart.

Dad & Mom

Congratulations, Jonathan!

Dear John,
 Your dedication to learning and achieving has been as rewarding to us, as to you. The compassion you show for others and your faith in God has been enhanced by your years at Davidson. We love you and are so proud of you.

"Would you tell me, please, which way I ought to go from here?" "That depends a good deal on where you want to go to,"
 said the Cat. "I don't much care where so long as I get somewhere," Alice replied.
 "Oh, you're sure to do that," said the Cat,
 "if only you walk long enough."

*And see?
Thanks for sharing your college campus with us for four years - if patience is a virtue, then you have been a saint. You are so very special. Yours is a bright and challenging future, one we know you face with both hope and confidence. Please know how proud we are of you.*

*We love you dearly,
Mom & Dad*

We love you
Dad, Mom,
Jessica &
Amy

Sarah and her girls.

My dearest Aisha,

The miracle of your birth seems like only yesterday. Time has now brought you to the fullness of your youth. What you do for a living does not matter to me. I want you to pursue what you ache for, and dare to dream of meeting your heart's desire. Risk looking like a fool to attain your goals, and treasure the adventure of being alive.

There will be times when you will need to disappoint another to be true to yourself. Trust your inner vision, and allow the vulnerability of your heart to unfold; only then will you experience the true measure of love. When the cards of life are less than perfect, draw strength from the priceless jewel enshrined in the depths of your consciousness. Marvel at the complexity of what sustains you, from the inside, when all else falls away. Continue to see beauty in the mundane, and source your life from its presence. My wish for you is to know who you are, and be at peace.

With all my love, Mama

Congratulations to Justin Perkinson and all of the 2001 grad's of Davidson College. We love you, Justin, and are so proud of you. Carry your Davidson experience wherever you go and always be true to yourself.

Love,

Dad, Mom, Ashlee, & Freddie

Our Melody,

You have always been and will continue to be our shining star. Set your sights on tomorrow for the sky is the limit!

*With much love and admiration,
Mom and Dad*

To Katherine,
Congratulations and
Love!

Melissa Grace-- Our "honeybee" and rising star

With your brains, talents and love of life you will go far. We are with you no matter where you are. Congratulations! We are very proud of you. With lots of love.

Mom, Dad, Lara, Kristen,

Grandma, your godparents, and our whole family

Congratulations to the

COLOPHON

THE QUIPS AND CRANKS STAFF HAS DONE IT AGAIN. ANOTHER YEARBOOK HAS COME OUT UNDER THE FEARLESS LEADERSHIP OF LINDSEY AND NATHANIEL. TAKING ON EDITORSHIP FOR THE SECOND YEAR, WE FOUND THAT YEARBOOK IS NOT QUITE AS SCARY AS WE HAD THOUGHT BEFORE. WITH A LARGE NUMBER OF STAFF FROM LAST YEAR HAVING DEPARTED, WE HAD TO DO SOME SERIOUS RECRUITING. THERE WERE EVEN SOME WHO THOUGHT THEY HAD LEFT YEARBOOK HERE AT DAVIDSON BEHIND THEM, WHO WE WERE ABLE TO CONVINCE OTHERWISE. WE WOULD LIKE TO EXTEND A SPECIAL THANK YOU TO THOSE PEOPLE WHO CAME BACK TO STAFF THIS YEAR TO HELP OUT, AFTER HAVING SAID THAT LAST YEAR WAS IT FOR YOU. TO THOSE THAT STARTED ON STAFF THIS YEAR, YOU DID A GREAT JOB, AND WE LOOK FORWARD TO A GREAT TURNOVER FOR NEXT YEAR. THANKS TO GINA AND CHERYL, AS ALWAYS IT WAS A PLEASURE TO GO IN AND TALK TO YOU, AND YOU HAVE ALWAYS BEEN A HELP TO US. TO WILLIAM, WE APPRECIATE ALL THE HELP AND ADVICE YOU HAVE GIVEN, WE ALWAYS WE KNEW WE COULD COME TO YOU WITH ANY BUSINESS QUESTIONS. CAROLYN, YOU ARE GREAT, WE NEVER HAD TO QUESTION HOW MUCH YOU WANTED TO HELP US AND ENCOURAGE US ALONG THE WAY. AN ENORMOUS THANK YOU ALSO GOES TO _____ AND MARSHA TRIMBLE FOR THEIR VERY CONSIDERABLE DONATIONS TO OUR YEARBOOK THIS YEAR, WE COULD NOT HAVE DONE IT WITHOUT YOU.

VOLUME XCXIII WAS PRODUCED BY VALSWORTH PUBLISHING COMPANY FROM BROOKFIELD, MISSOURI. OUR 304 PAGE BOOK WAS PRINTED ON EIGHTY POUND MONARCH GLOSS PAPER, THE COVER IN 160 POINT BOARD WITH SILVER FOIL AND SILK SCREEN. THE FIRST EIGHT DIVIDERS WERE DONE IN FOUR COLOR. ALL SENIOR AND UNDERCLASS PORTRAITS WERE TAKEN BY LIFETOUCH STUDIOS. 1,050 BOOKS WERE ORDERED, AND ALL SENIORS HAD THEIR BOOKS MAILED TO THEM FOR FREE. THIS IS LINDSEY AND NATHANIEL SAYING FAIRWELL IT HAS BEEN GREAT BEING IN CHARGE OF THIS BOOK, AND WE HOPE EDITORS FOR YEARS TO COME ENJOY IT AS MUCH AS WE HAVE.
